Nixon: Withdrawals to Go On

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon has fixed a goal of withdrawing an additional 150,000 U. S. troops from Vietnam in the next year—sticking roughly to the pullout pace of recent months.

In a television-radio address to the nation Monday night, the President said the number would be boosted should there be a breakthrough in peace negotiations. However, he emphasized:

"I must report with regret that no progress has taken place on the negotiating front."

Nixon expressed concern about Communist military incursions in Cambodia and Laos, but took a generally optimistic view of the Southeast Asian situation.

"We finally have in sight the just peace we are seeking," he said.

"We can now say with confidence that pacification is succeeding. We can say with confidence that the South Vietnamese can develop the capability for their own defense. We can say with confidence that all American combat forces can and will be withdrawn."

Nixon spoke from his office in the Western White House at San Clemente, Calif. Immediately afterward he and his wife Pat flew back to Washington.

A White House official who declined to be quoted by name told reporters Nixon plans to complete the withdrawal of 150,000 men during the next 12 months, give or take a few weeks. Barring the unforeseen, he said, the decision is irreversible.

If the Nixon plan is carried out, the authorized U.S. troop ceiling would drop by May 1971 to 284,000 men. The peak ceiling early in 1969 was 594,500.

Nixon said his decision "has the approval of the government of South Vietnam." He also consulted in advance with U.S. field commanders but did not claim his plan met with their wholehearted approval. There had been indications that some highly placed military men wanted the withdrawal rate slowed. The exact timing and pace of the new cutbacks in troop deployments, said Nixon, "will be determined by our best judgment of the current military and diplomatic situation."

Declaring that Hanoi would take a grave risk should it jeopardize remaining U.S. troops through military moves in Vietnam, Cambodia or Laos, Nixon said:

"If I conclude that increased enemy action jeopardizes our remaining forces in Vietnam, I shall not hesitate to take strong and effective measures to deal with that situation."

While saying Vietnamization will proceed on schedule, Nixon said:

"There is a better, shorter path to peace—through negotiations. We shall withdraw more than 150,000 over the next year if we make progress on the negotiating front."

The chief executive cited three principles governing his view of a just political settlement of the war:

"First, our overriding objective is a political solution that reflects the will of the South Vietnamese people and allows them to determine their future without outside interference . . .

"Second, a fair political solution should reflect the existing relationship of political forces within South Vietnam. We recognize the complexity of shaping machinery that would fairly apportion political power in South Vietnam. We are flexible; we have offered nothing on a take-it-or-leave-it basis."

"And third, we will abide by the outcome of the political process agreed upon."

Nixon said Hanoi had failed to win either militarily or politically in South Vietnam. "They thought they could win politically in the United States," he said. "This proved to be their most fatal miscalculation. In this great free country of ours, we debate—we disagree, sometimes violently—but the mistake the totalitarians make over and over again is to conclude that debate in a free country is proof of weakness . . . America has never been defeated in the proud 190-year history of this country and we shall not be defeated in Vietnam."

Massive Sweep By S. Viets Into Cambodia

SAIGON (AP) — South Vietnamese forces were making their third major thrust into Cambodia today, with 144 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troops reported killed during the first 24 hours of the operation.

Initial field reports said 20 South Vietnamese soldiers were killed and 75 wounded Monday, the first day of fighting. It was the heaviest losses reported for the South Vietnamese in three massive sweeps across the border in the past week.

Informed sources said a task force of up to 2,000 South Vietnamese Rangers and scores of tanks and armored personnel carriers drove as much as two miles into Cambodia's Svay Rieng Province, about 55 miles west of Saigon.

The crossing was made near the South Vietnamese town of Tuyen Binh, on the under side of the territorial protruberance known as the Parrot's Beak and about 25 miles southwest of the Highway 1 border crossing where the two previous penetrations into Cambodia were made.

The sources said the Saigon troops ran into strong enemy forces shortly after the operation was launched Monday morning. Pushing across open ground through rice paddies and a cluster of villages, the South Vietnamese reported capturing 15 prisoners, 71 weapons, nearly 4,000 pounds of rice and 1,000 Russian rifle cartridges.

As it did during the two previous operations across the border, South Vietnamese headquarters announced the new assault but placed it on the Vietnamese side of the border. Highly placed sources said this was done for "obvious political reasons," although informed sources have said the cross-border operations have the full approval of local Cambodian authorities.

There was no immediate evidence of any American involvement. One U.S. officer said that to the best of his knowledge American advisers were not with the troops who moved into Cambodia.

Meanwhile the U. S. Command issued figures today supporting President Nixon's statement Monday night that the number of Americans killed in action during the first three months of this year was "the lowest first quarter level in five years."

The command said 1,099 Americans were killed in action in January, February and March. In the four previous years the totals for those months 3,184 in 1969, 4,689 in 1968, 2,126 in 1967 and 1,224 in 1966.

A spokesman for the U.S. Command said there had been no reports of American air or artillery strikes into Cambodia in support of the South Vietnamese. The bombers and artillery participating in the operation were reported to be South Vietnamese.

The South Vietnamese operations inside Cambodia are directed at scores of North Vietnamese and Viet Cong base camps and staging areas used for attacks against U.S. and South Vietnamese forces in South Vietnam. In the two big operations last week, South Vietnamese forces claimed they smashed two base camps and killed 450 Viet Cong and North Vietnamese.

The U.S. Command announced the loss of two more helicopters in South Vietnam and a U.S. Air Force F105 fighter-bomber shot down while supporting Laotian forces near the Plain of Jars in north Central Laos.

One of the helicopters hit a power line last Friday and crashed into a river 15 miles northeast of Saigon, killing 11 of the 12 Americans aboard.

Vietnam as a Political Issue

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon apparently hopes to defuse Vietnam as a political issue in the 1970 elections with his surprise announcement of troop withdrawals spanning a year.

Virtually up to the moment Nixon went on the air Monday night, the widespread expectation in Washington was for another presidential troop pull-back announcement covering a period of a few months, similar to his spacing since the withdrawals started last June.

With his new 150,000-man return order, Nixon is still bringing the boys home from Vietnam at about the same pace as before but the next stage would not have to be announced until next spring.

While Nixon left himself room to announce a further pull-out closer to the November elections—"we shall withdraw more than 150,000 over the next year if we make progress on the negotiating front"—he may have figured that:

—He would be accused of manipulating for political gain with an announcement during campaign time.

—Whatever announcement he made then would be attacked by antiwar critics as not enough.

With a 150,000-man figure out now, his supporters could at least cite an in-process grand total of 265,000 withdrawals—about half the GIs out in Nixon's first two years.

Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, the Democrats' 1968 choice for vice president, promptly made plain he is not dropping Vietnam as an issue and put his finger on what bids to be a key Vietnam argument in the 1972 presidential campaign preliminaries next year.

The Maine senator said Nixon's statement suggests "that beginning sometime next spring, our troop levels in South Vietnam will level off at something like 284,000 for an indefinite period."

The issue on how many shall stay on in Vietnam indeed comes closer with each pull-back. A year hence, assuming no more progress at the negotiating table than hitherto, Nixon will be faced with a decision on cutting into what some believe is a hard core minimum of 200,000 or so GIs still needed to prevent South Vietnam's being called a "different kind of package," Nixon said the "timing and pace of these new withdrawals within the overall schedule will be determined by our best judgment of the current military and diplomatic situation."

There might be no substantial troop withdrawals for the next several months if field commanders fear a new enemy upsurge like that in early April which resulted in a jump in both U.S. and South Vietnamese casualties. Such a withdrawal pause would also give an additional breathing spell for Vietnamization to progress.

Some field commanders say further immediate troop cuts in some regions particularly the five northernmost provinces south of the Demilitarized Zone, would put the pacification program in jeopardy. The U.S. Joint Chiefs of Staff, apparently acting on recommendations from Gen. Creighton W. Abrams, the commander of U.S. forces in Vietnam, urged a two-month delay in further withdrawals.

Businessmen, UR Agency Criticized by Sinsabaugh

By HUGH REYNOLDS

KINGSTON Clifford G. Sinsabaugh, chairman of the Common Council's Urban Renewal Committee today blasted the Kingston Urban Renewal Agency in general and the Uptown Businessmen's Association in particular for "by-passing the Council in general in a meeting Tuesday night on the Uptown parking garage."

"This is another typical example of the lack of communication between the Council and the agency," Sinsabaugh declared. "When I hold an urban renewal committee meeting, I invite all the interested parties. We weren't even extended the courtesy of an invitation. We knew nothing of this meeting."

The meeting, held in the urban renewal offices on Broadway, was at the request of the Uptown Businessmen's Association to discuss the businessmen's differences with the agency on the parking garage. Attending the meeting were representatives of Fortunato Inc., contractors for the garage, Mayor Francis R. Koenig, Alderman-at-Large T. Robert Gallo and members of the agency along with their engineers.

Stanley London, president of the Uptown Businessmen's Association, had called for the meeting last Friday.

Coincidentally, it was only last Thursday that Sinsabaugh called a meeting of his Urban Renewal Committee with members of the businessmen's association and agency officials to discuss "a lack of communication" about plans for the proposed new Clinton Avenue extension. It was generally agreed after that meeting that the Common Council's Urban Renewal Committee would be kept abreast of all developments in both projects.

Sinsabaugh, in criticizing the Uptown Businessmen, said, "We respect their opinions on the garage. However, this garage is for all the people of the city, not just the uptown businessmen. Furthermore, the city is going to have to operate it when it's completed. We should be kept informed of any proposed changes in plans."

It would appear that Sinsabaugh's criticism of the Uptown businessmen, in this instance, is somewhat unwarranted. London said today that the businessmen's board of directors merely asked for the meeting. They did not schedule it and they extended no official invitations to it.

Reportedly, one of the results of the meeting, was a shift by the agency to the businessmen's viewpoint that the elevator-waiting room complex should be on the Wall Street side of the garage where it was originally designed by Fortunato before the agency recommended it be switched to the Fair Street side going to have to operate it when

Downtown City Hall Bids Approved by Committee

The City Hall Committee, acting swiftly in the wake of Wednesday's bid opening for the new city hall in Broadway East, met Monday night and approved the low bids by a four to one vote.

Reportedly, the committee will host a full meeting of the Council Wednesday night to review the plans with the other aldermen. It appears, though, that the decision to accept the low bids (by the City Hall Committee) is final and tomorrow's meeting is being held merely to officially inform the rest of the Council of the committee's decision.

The Committee, chaired by Alderman Michael S. Perry (D-Seventh Ward), met in city hall to review the combination of five low bids that totaled, according to city officials, $891,911.

Voting for acceptance were Perry, Emilio Primo Jr. (D-Eighth Ward), Mrs. Florence S. Ludlow (D-Fourth Ward) and Edmond Roux (R-Ninth Ward). The fifth member of the committee, Alderman Titus B. Sims (R-13th Ward), voted against the acceptance of the bids.

Sims cast the lone negative vote, reportedly, because he felt that the entire Common Council should vote on the bids, not just the five-member City Hall Committee.

Mrs. Ludlow expressed similar feelings, although she voted to accept the bids. Mrs. Ludlow's negative vote, however, would have been meaningless. The bids would have been approved 3-2.

According to Perry, the Council has already agreed to spend a maximum of $900,000 (June of last year) and to build the new city hall in Broadway East on land purchased from the urban renewal agency (January of last year).

In addition, the Council, at its March meeting, approved the plans that were bid on Wednesday. The only thing left is the acceptance of the low bids and according to Perry, that is the responsibility of his City Hall Committee.

construction was George H. Swart Inc. of 260 Fair Street at $604,326. John V. Warren of Rensselaer bid low on the automatic sprinkler system at $13,665. R. J. Welsh and Son of Saugerties was low on the plumbing contract at $43,000; Bank Brothers of Accord were low bidders on the heating and ventilation contract at $72,100 and Timmons Electric of Kingston was low on the electrical contract at $129,868.

The City Hall Committee's approval of the bids should clear the way for Mayor Francis R. Koenig, as chief executive officer of the city, to sign contracts for the construction of the new building.

Withall to the Chamber--- Become Involved in UR Issue

By LYNN MULVANEY

KINGSTON — Suggesting that Kingston's mayor, Francis R. Koenig and the Common Council, feel urban renewal only affects the city, Arthur H. Withall, president of the Kingston Consolidated School Board emphatically told the Kingston Area Chamber of Commerce today, "it is affecting every taxpayer in the Kingston Consolidated School District."

Addressing a breakfast meeting in the Gov. Clinton Hotel, he urged the Kingston Area Chamber members to become involved and help see that "something is done soon."

"We can't afford to have vacant lots," he said, explaining their effect on the tax rolls.

Asked if he felt the school system could "de-consolidate?" Withall said there is "no chance of consolidation being reversed." He said he fought the consolidation issue for 12 years before it became a reality but has since come to feel it has more educational advantages. Previous thoughts that it would mean a top-heavy administration have been dispelled, he said.

Predicting about a $1 million increase in the school budget for next year, for a total of $15 million, Withall said that with 49 per cent in state aid and 51 per cent to be raised by local taxpayers, the district will have to raise about $8 million. He pointed out that about 80 per cent of the budget is for salaries in the 1,000 staff system.

Withall discussed state aid to the schools and how it has changed from the fragmented system of about nine years ago to the present aid based on average daily pupil attendance.

He said he wanted to publicly thank Assemblyman H. Clark Bell and State Sen. Jay P. Rol-son for "their interest, their concern and for going to bat for us."

Referring to proposed budget cuts of a year ago, Withall said that if the Assembly and Senate had not modified them it would have meant a $350,000 less loss to the Kingston School System.

With regard to federal aid to schools, Withall suggested that it "does nothing to aid the local school district." He said it was a sore point with him in that the federal government "spends the money and does nothing... it's a waste."

"We don't need that money for new ideas, we need money to implement those we already have," he explained.

Referring to the projected local school budget, Withall said the increase is mainly due to inflation, increased enrollment and is in some sense, mandated programs.

But, he added, one of the most expensive laws pertaining to schools that has ever been passed is the Taylor Law. Its implementing costs alone, he explained, are tremendous in view of the fact that there are four separate units to negotiate. This means many more meetings, increased need for legal services and increase costs stemming from arbitration and grievance proceedings. He said that one grievance case had cost the school district several thousand dollars.

He pointed out that budget increases are felt deeply in the area of salaries to the extent that automatic yearly increments amount to a $400,000 annual increase and, he added, the staff "do not look upon it as a raise but feel it is due them."

Withall said he does not disagree with them on salaries but he does in the area of fringe benefits.

He projected the rate of growth in the school system between 1965 and 1975 to be about 25 per cent and he said he does not feel anyone should try to equate the number of people on the staff with the number of pupils and that in spite of the various problems confronting the board, "we are trying to run things as efficiently as possible."

With regard to new school board members, he said he hoped no one came to the board "with an ax to grind" because it would then take two years before he or she became a good school board member.

Benefit Package for Teachers Is Approved by Assembly

ALBANY — A major new benefit package of the state's public school teachers has been approved by the New York State Assembly. Assemblyman H. Clark Bell (R-Woodstock) who supported and voted for the bill in a statement released today said that the program grew out of studies conducted by the Assembly Ways and Means Committee at the request of Speaker Perry B. Duryea. The program will provide for a reduction in the cost of local school districts and increased retirement benefits for public school teachers.

In commenting on the program Assemblyman Bell said, "The new funding method in the program will allow for a direct tax savings of approximately 14 million dollars to the state school districts but it also will provide for an increase in service retirement, disability and death benefits for public school teachers.

The program utilizing a new funding method permits funding liabilities for the new benefits to be spaced over a 25-year period.

"Existing procedures generally provide for funding over a period of 10 to 15 years. If it had not been for this new program the benefit package for teachers would have required an increase of local contributions by school districts of about 36 million dollars. Instead it will be a net reduction of about 14 million dollars to our local school districts or an overall saving to the real property owners and taxpayers of this state of approximately 50 million dollars," Bell concluded.

The New York State Teachers Retirement Board has certified to local school districts an immediate decrease in their required retirement contribution of one per cent, thus providing the 14 million dollar saving referred to by Assemblyman Bell.

Woman Hurt Seriously

SAUGERTIES — A 19-year-old Franklin County woman was seriously injured at 2:25 a. m. today when her car went out of control and smashed into a rock ledge off the state Thruway about one mile north of this community.

A report of Troopers Robert Houghtaling and R. J. Reilly identified the woman as Deborah Willett of 20 Helen Street, Saranac Lake. She was taken to Benedictine Hospital by Saugerties Ambulance Service and treated for a compound fracture of the left leg, a possible fractured wrist and severe lacerations of the face.

The woman was under guarded care at the hospital because of the extent of her injuries. Authorities said the car was demolished.

Troopers noted that the woman, riding alone, was northbound when she apparently fell asleep. The vehicle veered across the center mail and hit the rock ledge. Investigation of the mishap will continue.

Meanwhile, Kingston police investigated a two-car collision which occurred at 9:10 p. m. at the intersection of Tremper Avenue and O'Neil Street and resulted in injuries to a two-month-old girl.

Police reported Mrs. Maryann M. Bragg, 18, of 233 Tremper Avenue, was driving her car on Tremper Avenue and stopped for the sign at O'Neil Street. As she proceeded to cross the intersection she stopped for another vehicle and the motor of her car stalled. A car traveling on O'Neil Street operated by 25-year-old Robert Kennedy of 101 Gage Street, reportedly collided with the left front fender of the Bragg car.

Mrs. Bragg's daughter, Christine Marie was injured when she fell to the floor. She was taken to Kingston Hospital for a checkup and later released.

Police investigation of the mishap resulted in a citation for Kennedy on a charge of operating a motor vehicle while his license was under suspension.

Those Wampum Belts... Iroquois Still Waiting

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) — To the Iroquois, it's the same old thing.

"It has been a long ordeal and a bitter experience for my people who once more were rebuffed by the state in their long quest for justice," said Chief Irving Powless, an Onondaga from Albany.

His complaint was that the state legislature adjourned without approving a bill to return to the Iroquois their beaded wampum belts now in the custody of the State Education Department Museum. The belts have a religious significance to the Iroquois, portraying aspects of Indian history and culture, and are valued at $280,000.

The state says the belts were given to the museum, but the Indians say no one had a right to do so. The belts are irreplaceable and, with at least 8,000 Indians living on reservations in New York State, Iroquois leaders say their traditions are still alive and not ready yet for relegation to a museum.

Assemblyman Joseph R. Pisanelli, R-New Rochelle, won Assembly approval for his bill to give the belts back to the Onondaga who, from their reservation near Syracuse, perform most Iroquois ceremonial and leadership functions.

"We know that state government forces were behind the killing of the bill," Powless said.

Earth Day's Emphasis— Man at the Crossroads

KINGSTON, Earth Day plans in the Mid-Hudson area have reached a fevered pitch.

Environmental Teach-Ins are planned at all area schools and colleges tomorrow with emphasis on pollution and what to do about it.

Doing their bit to cut down air pollution on the way to school will be Brother Leo Shea, a teacher at John A. Coleman High School, Hurley Avenue and a group of students. They plan to ride bicycles to school rather than taking motor vehicles which would contribute to the exhaust fumes which pollute the air.

Make Kingston Green and Keep Kingston High School Free of Pollution will be two of the projects planned Wednesday at KHS. General theme for the day is Give the Earth a Chance. Programs have been planned under the direction of co-chairmen Leslie Herring and Kevin Crosby with Mrs. MG. DeWitt as advisor.

Professor Richard Glazer of Ulster County Community College and David Fletcher, past president of Kingston and Hudson Valley Clean Air Committee will present a discussion on local pollution problems at J. Watson Bailey Junior High School Wednesday 8 p.m.

Fish to Speak

Congressman Hamilton Fish Jr. is one of the scheduled speakers at Rondout Valley High School where the students planned program is putting the finger on pollution and solution. Debbie Denkensohn headed RVHS planners.

Among the special programs for Earth Day at State University College, New Paltz will be an address by U.S. Senatorial candidate Paul O'Dwyer at 8:30 p.m. Professor Robert Likala, Earth Day media coordinator at New Paltz said that a full day of environmental teach-in in programs are planned in New Paltz. The activities are open to the public and are designed to call attention to man's careless handling of his environment.

An Earth Day Symposium will be held at Ulster County Community College from noon to 2 p.m. on the Stone Ridge campus. Panel speakers will explore local problems. Rod McLeod, student government president, will act as moderator.

While local schools stage their contributions to Earth Day, a group of seven students from the 38th Senatorial District of Ulster and Dutchess Counties will tour to Albany to take part in the New York State Senate Environmental Teach-In at the Senate Chamber.

At Senate Teach-In

They are Christine Withall of Kingston High School; Carolyn Geirisch and Lida Jurkowski of Rhinebeck High School; George Meldrum and Edward Uberbacher, Arlington High School; Poughkeepsie and Walter Hang and Christine Conte of Franklin Delano Roosevelt High School, Hyde Park.

According to Senator Jay P. Rolison the students were selected from among many outstanding candidates who were nominated by school districts throughout the state.

The Teach-In is sponsored by the Senate in recognition of the constructive student activism that has developed in the field of ecology.

Adults Concerned

The students are not the only ones concerned with Earth Day. In Woodstock, LIFE, the recently organized group of residents concerned with ecology and the problems of pollution will present a community meeting at the Woodstock School 8 p.m. Wednesday. The initials stand for Living in a Fulfilled Environment.

Guest panelists will be Dr. Ted Wansiedler, assistant professor of biology at UCCC, speaking on water pollution and Roy Madgewick, assistant director of the Mid-Hudson Patterns for Progress, speaking on development and pollution. Special consultant on the panel will be Aaron Van de Bogart, area forest ranger.

There will be a question and answer period and discussion after the panel presentation.

LIFE is a group of concerned citizens who feel that the environmental crisis has reached emergency proportions and that each community must act to try and solve these problems before it is too late, a spokesman said. Much of the Earth Day discussion will center on what individuals can do to help and for this reason all members of the Woodstock Community are urged to attend.

Growing Concern

Ulster Academy students presented a week of Environment Seminars early in March and out of their research have come a number of projects aimed at improving the situation. Two advanced biology students presented a special program on survival of environment at a recent meeting of the Kingston Rotary Club. Betty Winkler, a senior and Ivan Fernandez, a junior, gave a summary of the week of study and detailed projects being carried out in conjunction with the city, and Conservation Department and other schools in the Kingston area. Academy students have acted as consultants for other schools planning Earth Day events.

Ecology and man's need to be concerned with the preservation and improvement of his environment will provide the theme for a program of Readers Theater to be presented at the Ulster County Community College annual open house Sunday, April 26. The presentation, Born to Follow, will be given at 3 p.m. in Room 420 of the John Burroughs Science Building on the Stone Ridge campus. A second performance is scheduled Tuesday 1:45 p.m. at the same location.

Readers Theater Emphasis

The UCCC Oral Interpretation class under the guidance of Mrs. Rhoda R. Mones, chairman of the speech department has produced the original script. Using music, newspaper articles, excerpts of poetry and prose as a vehicle the students will reaffirm the vital need for all people to recognize this crossroads of many's very existence.

Pollution

Dr. Helen Osburg (L) assistant professor of biology at State University College, New Paltz, shows her microbiology students the technique of river-water sampling. The water, taken from various points on the Wallkill River, was found to contain significant amounts of coliform bacteria, indicating considerable pollution of the river. Complete results of the testing program will be released on Earth Day on the New Paltz campus. The all-day program at New Paltz is just one of many environmental teach-ins scheduled throughout Ulster County and the nation.

The Carswell Move

Could Mean Dilemma for Nixon

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon may face a political dilemma in the sudden decision of G. Harrold Carswell to make himself a candidate instead of just a campaign issue.

Carswell's political escalation will put his name on the Republican primary ballot in Florida. It is a name symbolic of the Supreme Court controversy certain to be an issue in congressional campaigns across the nation.

Rejected by the Senate for a seat on the Court, Carswell now seeks nomination to go to the Senate himself, as successor to retiring Democrat Spessard Holland.

That means a collision with Rep. William Cramer in the Sept. 8 Republican primary—and almost certainly, a bitter campaign in which both candidates will claim the Nixon stamp of approval.

Cramer said flatly Nixon urged him to run for the Senate in the first place. Other GOP sources confirmed this.

Carswell, on the other hand, can claim political inspiration in President Nixon's angry statement on his Supreme Court rejection—that "with the Senate as presently constituted" it is futile to nominate a conservative Southerner to the high court.

He must discard, however, a two-week-old piece of presidential advice. "The President has urged me to stay at my present assignment, and I intend to do so," the federal appeals judge said after the Senate voted down his nomination, 51 to 45.

Carswell's move apparently was engineered by Florida GOP Gov. Claude R. Kirk Jr., who is seeking re-election himself this year. To make way for Carswell, Lt. Gov. Ray Osborne, a Kirk ally, stepped aside as a Senate candidate.

Republican leaders hoping the GOP can capture control of the Senate rate Florida as a top 1970 target but a divisive primary campaign between Cramer and Carswell could dampen GOP prospects in November.

The prospect of such a primary battle could entice new Democratic entries, notably former Gov. Farris Bryant.

The Democratic primary field now includes three members of the state legislature.

Sen. Edward J. Gurney, R-Fla., was or hand to endorse Carswell at his Miami announcement. But most of the men who played key roles in the Senate battle over Carswell's court nomination chose silence.

THE DECISION—Federal Appeals Judge G. Harrold Carswell announced Monday that he was vacating his seat to run for the United States Senate. The announcement came just 12 days after Carswell was rejected as a nominee for the U.S. Supreme Court. Carswell (R) is shown with Florida Governor Claude Kirk as he read his statement to the press. Carswell's announcement sets up a Republican primary battle with U.S. Representative William Cramer who claims support from the White House. (UPI Telephoto)

The Douglas Impeachment Move—House Judiciary Group Ready to Act

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Judiciary Committee appeared ready today to move into the controversy created by efforts to impeach Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas.

Chairman Emanuel Celler, D-N.Y., said a closed-door meeting by his panel is designed to "chart our future course" in the Douglas affair.

Rep. William M. McCulloch of Ohio, ranking Republican committee member, predicted a special Judiciary unit will be named to study the charges.

Composition of such a unit is a point in dispute. GOP committee members favor an evenly balanced unit between Republicans and Democrats rather than a Democratic margin reflecting makeup of the House.

Conservative Republicans and Southern Democrats are backing an alternative approach for creation of a new special six-man committee—three Democrats and three Republicans—to investigate whether Douglas, a 31-year veteran of the court, should be impeached. Instead of being referred to the Judiciary Committee, which traditionally handles impeachment investigations, the alternative proposal went to the House Rules Committee since it creates a new unit.

It is possible under House procedures for both probes to go forward at the same time. Some, however, have interpreted the Judiciary move as an attempt to undercut the more conservative Rules Committee.

House GOP Leader Gerald R. Ford, outlining charges against Douglas in an hour-long floor speech last Wednesday, gave his blessing to the new-unit approach although he did not sign the resolution, which now is backed by 110 House members.

While Ford's decision to head the move was a popular one among GOP conservatives, liberal and moderate Republican members appear to have reservations.

The Judiciary Committee was brought into the picture when one of its members, Rep. Andrew Jacobs, D-Ind., introduced an impeachment resolution after Ford finished his speech endorsing the alternative approach.

"Since he (Ford) refuses to do so and since he raises grave questions, the answers to which I do not know, but every American is entitled to know," Jacobs told the House at the time, "I introduce at this time the resolution of impeachment in order that a proper and dignified inquiry into this matter might be held."

In his wide-ranging speech against Douglas, Ford attacked the jurist's latest book "Points of Rebellion," contending "it's thesis is that violence may be justified and perhaps only revolutionary overthrow of the establishment can save the country." Douglas, however, has denied this interpretation and suggested that people read the book.

Publishers Remind U.S. on Freedoms

NEW YORK (UPI)—National administration spokesmen need to be reminded that freedom of the press is a binding and present reality, the president of the American Newspaper Publishers Association said today.

Some, he said, seem to forget it is an inviolable tradition.

In the annual address of the president, William F. Schmick Jr. of the Baltimore Sun newspapers told the 84th ANPA Convention he was not one of those who regarded Vice President Spiro T. Agnew's criticisms as a deliberate attack on press freedom.

"What should concern us, though, and concern us deeply, is the public reaction to his comments," Schmick added. "There can be little doubt that the outpouring of letters after Mr. Agnew's speeches revealed that a great many people accepted and applauded his strictures, without in the least understanding the implications of their acceptance."

"It is clear, however, that the drift and tone of Mr. Agnew's speeches—the 'thrust' of them, to borrow his word—can hardly be squared with an instinctive, unqualified respect for the freedom of the press."

"Nor can Attorney General John Mitchell's statement following attempts to subpoena news tapes, films and unedited files and reporters' notebooks. He publicly regretted that this action 'may have been the subject of any misunderstanding or implication that the Department of Justice is interfering in the traditional tradition."

Castro Charges Nixon Orders Preparation for New Invasion

MIAMI (UPI)—Premier Fidel Castro charged Monday night that, on President Nixon's orders, preparations and recruiting of exiles are under way in the United States for a new invasion of Cuba.

He said it would meet the same fate as the abortive Bay of Pigs invasion. "Those (invaders) who do not die fighting will be executed by firing squads," Castro added.

His speech was made Sunday at the Oriente Province hamlet of Gran Tierra during funeral services for five Cuban troops slain in a weekend invasion by Miami-based guerrillas of the Alpha 66 organization. It was recorded and "deferred" for public broadcast on radio and TV until Monday night.

Curiously, Castro gave no new information on the fate of the Alpha 66 guerrillas who may still be at large in the Oriente countryside.

No further developments—except Castro's disclosure of a fifth death—have been reported by Havana Radio since Sunday's announcement that two invaders were killed and three captured by Castroite forces near Baracoa, Oriente.

The Cuban casualty toll went up, Castro said, when one of two "gravely wounded" men died. The other four died "almost instantaneously" fighting with the exiles, he said.

Only a few hours before Castro spoke, the Alpha 66 organization said in Miami that it was conducting military operations on "two main fronts" in Cuba. But it declined to specify exactly where or say how many men were involved.

After denouncing Nixon as "the same one who supported President Eisenhower with the greatest enthusiasm in the criminal (planning of the) Bay of Pigs invasion," Castro said a new U.S.-backed invasion can be expected.

Five Convicted For Disruptions At Buffalo

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — A State Supreme Court justice has convicted five students of criminal contempt and issued an arrest warrant for a sixth in the outgrowth of disorders at the State University at Buffalo earlier this year.

Justice Hamilton Ward found the five guilty Monday of disobeying a court order that banned disruptions on the campus. He sentenced them to 30-day jail terms but stayed execution of the sentence for 90 days.

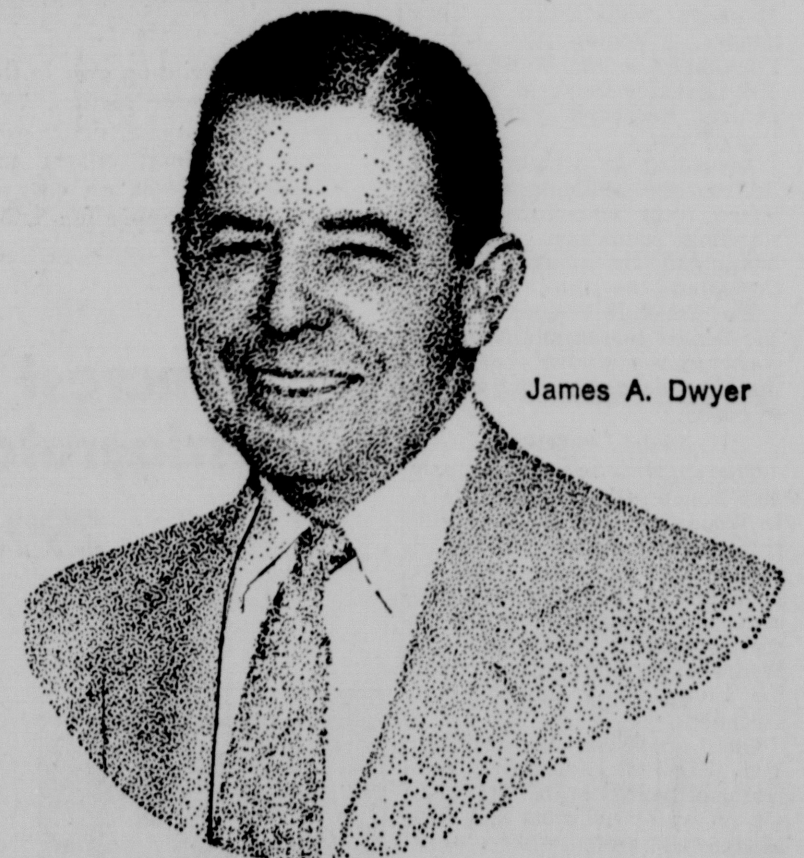

The delay, he said, was to permit the defendants to concentrate on their school examinations. A defense lawyer said, however, an appeal would be made to the Appellate Division in Rochester during the period.

Our own surveys indicate that quite a few people think an Olds costs a lot more than it really does. Result? Many people buy an ordinary car and end up with a lot less car and value for their money.

Astronauts Tell It Tonight

ASTRONAUTS TELL HD ... SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Apollo 13's astronauts tell the world tonight the story of their space adventure—the oxygen tank explosion that crippled their spaceship and a four-day fight for survival to return safely home.

Earlier, they meet with the head of a review board named to investigate the accident that aborted the $375 million moon-landing mission.

James A. Lovell Jr., Fred W. Haise Jr. and John L. Swigert Jr. make their report on a nationally televised and broadcast news conference at 7:30 p.m. EST. They'll also narrate a film and slides they took in space.

Lovell has already given an indication of the feelings of the astronauts during their moments of peril, when he told a welcoming ceremony in Houston Sunday that there were times they felt they wouldn't make it back to earth.

The review board head, Edgar M. Cortright, flew to the Manned Spacecraft Center Monday night to meet with the astronauts today, starting a lengthy probe to determine exactly what went wrong 202,000 miles in space and what could be done to correct the problem.

Until a solution is found, all future Apollo moon flights will be grounded. While experts analyze the trouble, preparations moved ahead at Cape Kennedy for the planned Oct. 1 launch of Apollo 14.

"We'll proceed on a routine schedule until we're told to do otherwise," a space agency spokesman said.

Cortright, head of the space agency's Langley, Va., Research Center, met Monday in Washington with the NASA administrator, Dr. Thomas O. Paine. They began forming the membership of the high-level review board and said the names would be announced later this week.

Lovell, Haise and Swigert began Monday an extensive debriefing on the mission in a tape-recorded session with space experts.

Astronaut chief Donald K. Slayton and Air Force Maj. Lloyd Reeder, an astronaut training specialist, listened for eight hours as the spacemen recounted their trip, including the moment when an oxygen tank erupted, depriving the command ship of precious oxygen and power and forcing them to use the lunar module systems to save their lives.

Additional eight-hour sessions are scheduled each of the next nine days as the astronauts recall every aspect of the journey. They'll go over systems in the command and lunar ships, discuss medical details, assess the rescue procedures that got them home and make personal observations and recommendations.

A 150-man mission evaluation team continued to sort through mounds of data, seeking clues to what caused oxygen tank No. 2 to erupt. Electrical systems received special attention because of the possibility of a short circuit.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration released Monday a film of the astronauts aboard their craft in space.

The 6½ minute, 16 mm movie included several scenes of them sleeping in the lunar module, scenes recorded after the accident.

TIME FOR GREETINGS — The Apollo 13 astronauts interrupt their debriefing session on Monday long enough to receive greetings from rocket scientist Dr. Werner Von Braun. ## The 1970 Albany Legislature—A Liberal Record

By CLAY F. RICHARDS
ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) — The first legislature of the new decade was history today, leaving behind a liberal record that included abortion reform, legalization of off-track gambling, a first step toward protection of the environment and major increases in state aid.

The 193rd session adjourned at 6:56 p.m. Monday so members could return home for a crucial election campaign that will determine if Republicans retain control of both houses of the legislature.

The surprisingly liberal record of the GOP legislature was hinted at by Senate Majority Leader Earl W. Brydges who said "We resolved many unexpected issues."

"I believe history will say we were courageous," Brydges said.

Governor Rockefeller, making a rare appearance in the Assembly, said the legislature was one of the most "forward looking" in history and he praised lawmakers for taking up controversial issues in a year when it could jeopardize re-election.

Democrats said the Republican record fell short of meeting the social needs of the state, and charged that the record expansion of the lottery to per-school aid hike of $360 million would still force increases in local property taxes.

A number of major bills were not passed in the legislature until adjournment day. These included returning 21 per cent of the income tax to localities for $246 million in state aid, legalization of off-track betting and

These bills were the major elements of a package worked out by the governor and Mayor John V. Lindsay to aid New York City. The measures apply statewide, however, and all localities can benefit. The legislature passed an unusually large number of Rockefeller program bills, many of which will become the basis for the governor's fourth term campaign.

These included such items as first approval of constitutional amendments to lower the voting age to 18 and repeal the Blaine amendment, a history-making plan to give parochial schools

$28 million and a new super probe organized crime infiltration anywhere in New York. Unlike past years when nearly every major bill came from the governor, the legislature took more initiative and came up with a number of major proposals of its own. This is in part a reflection of the active leadership of freshman Assembly Speaker Perry B. Duryea, the measure which starting July 1 will allow women to have abortions without restrictions during the first six months of pregnancy.

Another major gambling proposal, legalization of betting on quarter horse racing, was also inspired by an individual member of the house.

$247 Million More for Local Governments

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Local governments could count today on an extra $247 million in their next fiscal year after the passage of a new tax-sharing program in the legislature.

The program, approved Monday by the Senate and the Assembly, would involve a distribution of 21 per cent of the state's personal income taxes to cities, counties, villages and towns.

The local governments would be given a small percentage of the tax collections in proportion to their population. Cities with heavy concentrations of population per square mile would get still more.

For New York City, the program means an additional $158 million in revenue next year, available in time for the 1970-71 fiscal years of the local governments, which extends about three months past the start of the state fiscal year.

This provision was designed to avoid appropriating money in this year's state budget for the program. The legislators this year merely voted the commitment, next year they have the job of finding the money.

The revenue-sharing program was part of a broad fiscal package designed to raise funds for local governments, particularly New York City.

The changes in the lottery system and the legalization of off-track betting also will be a source of funds, leaders say.

For New York City, the off-track betting was expected to yield $50 million and the lottery share, $40 million.

Red Leaders Converging on Moscow for Lenin Anniversary

MOSCOW (UPI) — The leaders of the birth of Vladimir I. Lenin.

Communist China and its tiny ally, Albania, were excluded from the gathering, intended to present the 11 members of the Soviet politburo as the legiti-mate heirs and true interpreters of Lenin, the father of the Soviet Union.

The Chinese, who claim the Russians have perverted Marxist-Leninist purity to their aims of world domination, sent an embassy delegation to Red Square Monday and placed an elaborate wreath at Lenin's red granite mausoleum.

The Lenin celebration is the biggest high-level gathering of Communist leaders since the World Communist Congress in June, 1969.

The streets of Moscow were decorated with red bunting, red flags, the flags of the Soviet republics and the Communist portraits of politburo members. The two-day celebration will be climaxed Wednesday with a massive fireworks display.

Lenin, the hero of the 1917 revolution, was born April 22, 1870. He died in 1924.

Harry S. Hutton

The sudden death of Harry S. Hutton on Monday removes a native son who was a loyal worker in the community and true friend of every good cause. Mr. Hutton retired a year ago as business manager of The Freeman after 43 years of service.

Starting as a clerk in the business office of The Freeman as a young man when the Rondout section of the city was the business center, he saw the Kingston area grow from a rural community into one with major industries and modern shopping centers. At the time of his retirement, co-workers at a testimonial dinner described him as a dedicated man, a man of highest integrity and honesty—a man who always worked hard but always had time to hear anybody's troubles and to assist them. Whenever any worthwhile project was undertaken, Harry was always there pitching in. If he could not actively participate, he would at least lend encouragement.

His experience, skill and judgment vastly increased the efficiency of this newspaper's operation and his firm dedication to his work was an inspiration to all of us.

Besides his profound interest in the civic life of the community, he also was an active member of Evangelical Lutheran Church of the Redeemer, having served as president and also secretary. At the time of his death, he was church treasurer.

To have known him was a rich and rewarding experience. If there ever was a personification of good will, it was Harry Hutton.

Government Spending

When President Nixon told a press conference last December that 35 to 37 per cent of the gross national product goes for taxes on all levels of government and, "I believe that is high enough," he was stating the principle that government spending is taking all it should before the nation loses its character as a free, private enterprise economy.

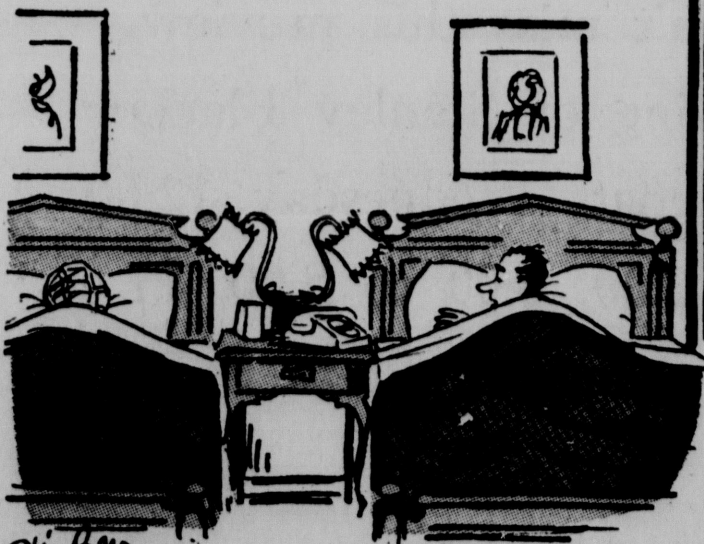

A larger share of the output of goods and services spent by government would turn over the economy and it would become primarily "a state-controlled and oriented economy," the President warned. He did not give such a state-controlled economy a name, but in our lifetime we have seen two totalitarian economies that were state-controlled, one by facism and the other communism, and we have shown we want none of either.

With some $300 billion spent every year by the different levels of government, two-thirds by the federal government, and one-third by state and local governments, Mr. Nixon has given notice that he will not be party to taking any larger share from the taxpayer to spend for public programs. This assertion does not mean necessarily that government will not take something more than the $300 billion a year. But the President's intention is that it will not slice out more than 35 to 37 per cent of the GNP.

Reliable forecasts put the GNP at $1,200 billion by 1975, so the taxpayer may be paying as much as $420 billion to $444 billion a year by 1975 and still not paying any larger share of his income in taxes than he is paying today. Because of inflation, that will mean the cost of government will grow and leave very little in the way of new money for new initiatives.

Whether Congress will understand and agree to these facts of life in the economy of the nation is something else again. Even the President may be forced, by the demands of politics, to change his views. For the present, we can feel that the ratio of our income which we signed away to Internal Revenue the past week is about the ratio we will be called on to give for the next five years, unless some unforeseen national emergency occurs.

BERRY'S WORLD

"For two cents, I'd call in sick!"

The New Diplomacy?

Henry J. Taylor Says Good Stock Market Important

The stock market is moving on two laws that never have been repealed — the law of supply and demand and human nature. Meanwhile, the so-called little man is staying away in droves.

Throughout 1967 and 1968 odd-lot buying (less than 10 shares) on the New York Stock Exchange averaged 5.8 million shares a week. Last year this shrunk to 4.7 million a week. For 1970 the figure has shrunk to 3.2 million. The 45 per cent drop since 1968 compares with a fall of only 18 per cent in the exchange's total volume.

It is commonly said in Wall Street that the odd-lot buyers have been reaching for the bottom for the last year and a half. This reaching accelerated just before the Dow-Jones industrial average fell through the critical, four-times-tested 800 level on December 7 last year.

Their reward has been losses — those sneering devils — in repeated gestures from the market about as kindly as the slap on the rump the farmer gives the lamb when loading it into a truck bound for the slaughterhouse. And, on the record, they're simply not trying any more.

Studies show a surprising lack of concern about brokerage fees and the paper work chaos in many brokerage back rooms as a major deterrent to their participation. All findings reveal that what's keeping small investors out of the market is the bad performance of stocks. It's as simple as that.

Yet, a good stock market is amazingly more important to all of us, and to the country, than the mere clutter of its tickers. Wall Street and Main Street are really one, so wide is the reliance today.

On October 29, 1929, Variety published its immortal headline: "Wall Street Lays An Egg." But only a million Americans then had a direct interest in stocks. Stock market shareowners have now built themselves to nearly 25 million. That, of itself, is a very heady figure. Then another estimated 82 million have an indirect involvement in the stock markets. This exceeds our entire working population by about 29 million.

For example, there are the institutions. A U.S. Office of Education survey of 135 educational institutions' endowment funds shows that their portfolios now average 54 per cent in common stocks. Some show as high as 80 per cent. Harvard, Yale, Princeton and Columbia alone have investment portfolios totaling more than $2 billion — of which Harvard alone, the world's most richly endowed university, has more than half. A full 60 per cent of this $2 billion is in common stocks.

Look, in turn, at the private pension funds. The Security and Exchange Commission recently reported that these now cover more than 30 million people. They have assets worth $8.4 billion. More than half is in common stocks. In 1958 the ratio was 27 per cent.

Companies likewise have sharing plans covering at least 6 million corporation employees. Their trust funds' common stocks represent additional billions.

The odd-lot buyers (or any other buyers) reaching for the bottom by added purchases is a fundamental error. Prices, not opinions, are the payoff in the stock market. Yet, how natural it is to buy more of a stock when its price goes down. Great numbers of people will buy a stock at 50 expecting it to advance. Unexpectedly, it drops to 40. They buy more, and perhaps more at 30.

So long as the market trend, or the trend of the buyer's individual stock, remains upward this added buying — called "averaging" — can be profitable. But, if the trend has changed, the added purchases through "averaging" can be the key to untold trouble. For few buyers meet disaster by the quantity of shares they originally buy. Ice-cream records in brokerage houses prove that their "averaging" is the most usual error causing buyers (often tragically) to become overextended.

Old Wall Street hands know that the only insurance available against what may be personal disaster cannot be repeated too often. Never — never — buy more of stock, no matter how convinced, no matter how tempted, in which you have a loss. There is absolutely no other way to limit your loss and preserve your hard-earned capital for another day — none.

animosity he stirred in his incredible 85-day battle for the presidential nomination that year. Bob Kennedy was considered unique among the aspirants for having allegedly demonstrated—must be forcefully in the 1968 Indiana primary — that he could get a heavy proportion of black votes and yet also win large numbers of the blue-collar workers who felt most threatened by black advances.

Industrial northern Indiana — specifically Hammond, East Chicago and Gary — was the arena where Kennedy is supposed to have proved this capacity.

Actually, however, the real figures do not appear to support the legend. Milton Gwirtzman, longtime aide to the Kennedys and author with William VandenHeuvel of a new book on Bob Kennedy called "On His Own," has questioned the contention from the outset.

In the book, he cites the final 1968 primary vote totals for the area — Lake County, Ind. He notes that Kennedy took the county over Sen. Eugene McCarthy by 15,000 votes—but the margin came wholly from heavily black Gary. Of 15 other cities in the county won by George Wallace in the 1964 primary, 13 went to McCarthy and just one to Kennedy. In Gary's 70 white precincts, McCarthy outdid him 49 to 34 per cent.

Possibly, figures aside, the late Robert Kennedy might in fact have found a way to draw blacks and blue-collar whites together. So might Ted. But, plainly, the Indiana figures offer no proofs.

Jack Anderson Says

Hruska Nails Down Contract For Contributor to Campaign

WASHINGTON — Taking money to fix government cases, as former Sen. Dan Brewster, D-Md., and Rep. John Dowdy, D-Tex., have sadly learned, is a crime for Democrats. It will be interesting to see whether the Justice Department is as vigorous about enforcing the law in the case of Sen. Roman Hruska, R-Neb., a power in Republican policy councils, whose daughter works at the White House.

Both the broken Brewster and the bumbling Dowdy have been indicted for allegedly taking money for intervening in government cases. Under the law, it makes no difference whether the money was intended as a campaign contribution or an outright bribe.

This column has now learned that Sen. Hruska intervened last year to make sure a campaign contributor, Leo A. Daly, retains a $2.64 million contract to redesign the "Avenue of Presidents."

Daly acknowledged to this column that he has supported Hruska's political cause in the past and implied that he expected to contribute to Hruska's 1970 campaign. Daly denied a specific report, however, that he promised a $5,000 contribution at the same time his government contract was under negotiation last fall.

"I hope I don't have to support him to that extent," said Daly jokingly.

The reason he needed Hruska's intervention to save his contract, ironically, was that he had put his money on Democratic Gov. Frank Morrison in 1966. Morrison tried unsuccessfully to unseat Sen. Carl Curtis, R-Neb.

In 1966, of course, the Democrats controlled federal contracts. Now that the Republicans are in charge, Daly has maneuvered adroitly over to the GOP side. He will support Hruska, who is expected to run this year against the same Frank Morrison whom Daly helped to finance in 1966.

The $2.64 million contract, which Daly so eagerly sought, is for redesigning along the historic stretch of Pennsylvania Avenue between the Capitol building and the White House. This spectacular "Avenue of Presidents," a tourist promenade, is now crowded with unsightly shops and private office buildings.

President Johnson allotted funds to beautify this "federal triangle and an independent, laureled jury of architects picked John Carl Warnecke to do the planning. They said that "there is no question" Warnecke was the best man.

In December, 1968, Daly was invited by the General Services Administration to work with Warnecke. But as late as January, 1969, the GSA informed Warnecke that "it is our desire that your firm take the lead in this joint venture."

After the GOP takeover, however, the project was postponed while the Nixon administration looked around for a deserving Republican architect.

Daly anxiously got hold of Roman Hruska who agreed to help him keep his portion of the contract. Daly claimed that Hruska carefully explained to him: "Anything I do for you will be what I'd do for any constituent."

In any event, Hruska contacted GSA Administrator Robert Kunzig in Daly's behalf.

Kunzig knew that Hruska was a leader of the Senate's GOP conservative bloc and that his daughter Jana is secretary to the President's domestic affairs advisor John Erlichmann. This gives Hruska a direct pipeline into the White House.

But the Senator did not tell Kunzig that Daly was a past contributor and a potential milch cow for his 1970 campaign.

Without consulting the distinguished architectural jury that had selected Warnecke, Kunzig kicked Warnecke off the project but directed that Daly could stay on the job. To replace Warnecke, Kunzig chose Vincent Kling, a GOP loyalist from his home state of Pennsylvania.

Kling just happens to have put up money for President Nixon's 1968 campaign. He was also a financial backer of Pennsylvania's GOP governor, Raymond Shafer, for whom Kunzig was once a campaign director.

The delay caused by this contractual shell game has cost the taxpayers millions on the $100 million project. But top Republicans can breathe more easily now that the fat architect fee is in the hands of their campaign contributors.

Footnote: It is worth mentioning that a 408-car parking structure at Omaha's Clarkson Hospital, a facility designed by Daly, partially collapsed last week.

The Geological Survey has told Congress that $10 billion worth of urban construction and development is being built each year on potential earthquake land in the United States.

Members of the House Interior Appropriation subcommittee learned to their surprise behind closed doors, that, instead of boosting research funds for earthquakes, the Bureau of the Budget has cut back the funds.

This was done in spite of warnings by government scientists that California is due for another big quake at any time, one that may rival the 1906 San Francisco catastrophe in ferocity.

The scientists have bluntly told the subcommittee that many schools and hospitals lie within 1,000 feet of the probable crack in the earth's surface. The big threats are in California and Alaska, with California's San Andreas vault a critical area. Yet the total budgeted for fiscal 1971 for earthquake studies is less than $1.4 million.

In Shadow of White House

Washington 'Animal Jungle'

By TOM TIEDE

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — Albert Hart is 49 years old. Frail, Unemployed, Poor. He lives quietly with his wife in a modest apartment. In his own words, "I ain't never done no harm to nobody at all."

The other day Hart left his apartment to cash a small U.S. Army disability check. Twenty dollars. When he returned home, he was greeted by "some crazy man" who grabbed him at his door, began choking his neck, hit him savagely on the eye, ripped his wallet from his pocket — and then ran free.

"I couldn't be killed," Hart said later, a film of blood forming on his eye.

"What's the matter with people in this town anyway? They can call them crooks — but my opinion is it's full of animals."

On the day Albert Hart was robbed, at least two dozen people in his immediate neighborhood would loudly agree with him. That's the number of other citizens who were also attacked.

Hart and the two dozen others live in Washington's Third Police District, 5½ square miles of innercity filled with 106,000 people, a number of foreign embassies, several dozen federal offices, a shocking slum, hundreds of prostitutes — an unknown number of criminals.

It's in the shadow of the White House. In a single 24-hour period which included the attack on Albert Hart, this is the misery that happened:

Time, 11 p.m. — Joe Pat Powell, a middle-aged resident of 14th Street, was found in an alley with a bullet in his stomach. For reasons unknown, somebody shot him point-blank. By the time police got him to the hospital, he was dead.

Time, 12:30 a.m. — Ray Barker was accosted in a parking lot by two men, one carrying a black coat, the other wearing flowered pants. Flowered Pants told Barker, "This is a holdup," shoved him around and got $6 for the effort.

Time, 1 a.m. — Douglas Schwinicker heard a knock on his apartment door. When he opened it, four men forced their way inside. A scuffle began. One of the four men pulled out a pair of scissors and stabbed Schwinicker in the head.

Time, 3 a.m. — Delores Harris was walking along Chaplin Street when a man with a white sheet over his head grabbed her, stuck a knife to her neck and said, "Come with me." He forced her into an alley, made her take off some of her clothes and then attempted to commit sodomy. Failing, he mumbled in delirium, took three dollars, picked up the woman's clothes and escaped.

Those were the "major" crimes. In all, a normal day for the Third Police District. One homicide, one bomb threat, four burglaries, one attempted rape, four robberies, three assaults with deadly weapons, three grand larcenies, seven petty larcenies, two arsons, two dozen arrests — plus scores of assorted complaints which were never satisfied.

On Clifton Street, Albert Hart sat on a sofa, holding his swelling eye. His chest was pounding visibly through a thin, soiled T-shirt.

"Animals," he kept repeating, "this town's full of animals. It's like the jungle. You can't go out at night. You can't go out in the day neither."

White Leftists Use Them

By RAY CROMLEY

NEA Washington Correspondent WASHINGTON (NEA) — The other day this reporter talked to a Negro who works with activist blacks.

She is a well-trained psychiatrist. Her job is to understand what is going on and to analyze her findings.

The subject of our conversation was simple. She was certain the black activists, at least those she works with, have lost faith in white activists.

The blacks, she said, believe firmly their white counterparts are out to use them. The white radicals are after some objectives and find the blacks useful. Negroes are put in the first line and get the rape. At least this is what they believe. Make no mistake about it.

Some time back this reporter talked with a representative of one of the larger national student groups. We were discussing why the black students who had been members of that association split off from the whites and set up their own federation.

The blacks told me, this representative said, that what the white students were doing was not relevant to their black problems.

They saw nothing to gain by working with the whites. This wasn't said out of anger, the young man reported. They just couldn't see a pay-off.

There is no objective national survey on how effective the radical left is these days. But there is increasing evidence a large number of those people the left activists are trying to reach do not think the message is relevant.

The reaction of some blacks has been noted in the paragraphs above.

But the same story can be told elsewhere.

This past summer, members of the Students for a Democratic Society and a mixed group of other activist students attempted to infiltrate the ranks of blue collar workers in selected cities throughout the country. Even at this late date, the returns are fragmentary. But what results are known indicate that in most places the students weren't able to talk in terms the workingman felt any part of. It wasn't only the language. The students were talking about concepts that made no sense to the men and women they were talking to. It was theory — and the workingmen this reporter knows believed it was theory not based on anything real. It wasn't relevant.

The successful leftist movement of Asia began on different grounds. The early successes of the Viet Cong came about because their cadre would walk barefooted in "pajamas" into a village, squat by the side of the road and talk to farmers in a language the farmers used and about problems that farmers talked about.

The early failures of Saigon came about because the Saigon cadre moved out into the provinces wearing white shirts and shiny, pointed black shoes talking a different "language."

The VC agents worked in the farmers' world. The Saigon men lived in a different world and the farmers felt no empathy.

Thus far the activist students have not learned, it appears, to live in the world of the factory worker, the farmer, the businessman or the Negro.

Mitchell Fires Information Director

WASHINGTON (AP) — Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell, who recently hired a press aide for his wife, has decided to dismiss his own image-maker.

Jack C. Landau, director of the Justice Department's information office under Mitchell, has been given his walking papers, according to sources close to the attorney general.

Asked about the report Monday, Landau acknowledged he was looking for another job, but contended he would remain at Justice as long as Mitchell wants him to stay.

But sources close to Mitchell said Landau, a former Washington reporter, was told he did not fit the mold of what an administration spokesman should be. The firing of Landau came shortly before Mitchell hired Kay Westendiek as press assistant for his controversial wife, Martha.

But the dismissal was not disclosed until after a Washington educational television station, WETA-TV, fired Mrs. Westendiek's husband, William, as editor of its Newsroom program because of his wife's new employment.

No announcement has been made on Landau's replacement. Westendiek, 46, was relieved of his duties last Friday in a note saying he was dismissed.

Extensive Fire Damage To Kansas Campus Building

LAWRENCE, Kan. (AP) — A fire caused extensive damage to the student union of the University of Kansas in this racially tense campus city Monday night. Officials said the cause of the blaze was not known. Dennis Kallsen, assistant city manager, said three fire bombs were found at Lawrence High School, and one exploded, causing minor damage to the administration building.

Landau's dismissal was understood to have occurred prior to the Carswell vote. No reason was disclosed publicly, but some high Justice Department officials were opposed to him.

Kallsen said some windows of buildings nearby were broken apparently by rifle or shotgun fire.

Kallsen said there were no roving armed bands shooting out windows that he knew of. "In fact," he said, "traffic was at a minimum."

A fireman told a Lawrence Journal-World reporter that windows at the Santa Fe Railroad depot were shattered.

A crowd of students gathered around the student union building and some helped firemen for more than three hours before the blaze was brought under control.

Earlier Monday, the student body at Lawrence High had turned down a demand by black students that two of the school's five cheerleaders be Negro.

All city schools were dismissed Friday because of the racial unrest.

33 Killed In Plane Crash Near Manila

MANILA (UPI)—A Philippine Airlines turboprop with 33 persons aboard crashed into a mountain and burned during its approach to Manila in a rainstorm today, killing everyone aboard.

A PAL spokesman said the Hawker Siddeley 740 carried 29 passengers and a crew of four, all Filipinos, to their deaths 65 miles northeast of the capital.

The pilot of the plane, Capt. Diego Liwag, had requested permission to make an instrument approach to the airport at 11:34 a.m. in his last radio contact with the control tower. His flight path was to have been through severe storms.

PAL spokesmen said the control tower radioed back permission for the instrument approach but there was no reply. At 1 p.m., an hour after the flight was due from Cawayan in Northeastern Luzon, the plane was officially listed as missing.

All of the bodies were said to have been burned beyond recognition. Officials had no specific cause for the crash, other than speculating Liwag lost altitude in heavy clouds and did not see the mountain in his flight path.

NEW YORK (UPI)—Xerox Corp. filed suit today against International Business Machines Corp., charging IBM's new copying machine infringed on 21 Xerox patents.

Xerox asked U.S. District Court for an injunction prohibiting IBM from marketing the copier.

Xerox said it had refused twice to license IBM to use its Xerographic process patents for copying machines although IBM has a license to use Xerographic patents in data processing equipment.

The suit claimed IBM misused confidential technology it received from Xerox.

Tired Blood -- FTC Claims Two Not the Answer

NEW YORK (UPI)—The federal government thinks it is more difficult than advertised to wake up tired blood.

The Federal Trade Commission filed a $1 million suit Monday against the manufacturer of Geritol and Femiron and the advertising agency which prepared television commercials claiming the products would help end that tired, rundown feeling.

Asst. U. S. Atty. Patricia M. Hynes said, in an 11-count complaint, that commercials for the two products, shown from June through October, 1969, were "false and misleading to the consumer in that they overstate the effectiveness of the product."

The J. B. Williams Co. Inc. and the Parkson Advertising Agency were accused of violating a "cease and desist" order issued in November, 1967, by the FTC. The order, as cited in the suit, prohibited "any advertisement which represents directly or by implication that the product is a generally effective remedy for tiredness, loss of strength, run down feeling, nervousness or irritability."

Let Your Modern Heating Oil "Maid" ... Work for You The Year 'Round!

Just because the end of the heating season may not be far off, don't think your loyal and dependable heating oil system has to be "laid off" until next winter.

Today's modern home heating oil can easily be your full-time servant!

For example, hot water requirements during the summer months are as much, if not more, than during the winter season. For just pennies a day, you can have the amazing oil water heater work for you. Oil heat produces hot water up to five times as fast as other fuels ... and for as little as one third the cost. With an oil-powered hot water heater you never run out of hot water—for it actually produces hot water faster than your family can use it.

Home heating oil can also give you the same comfort during those hot summer days that you got during cold winter days. Now you can have year-round temperature and humidity control—and at a price that lets you enjoy the comfort that the system provides.

Why not get the facts about converting your oil-heated home to a year-round comfort home? Just give your heating oil supplier a call for complete details.

HRVC Lists 5 Projects For Area

TARRYTOWN
A 3,700-foot submarine telephone cable between Kingston and Rhinecliff and a housing complex of seven buildings in Poughkeepsie were among five projects in which the Hudson River Valley Commission, in a recent ruling, found "no unreasonable impairment."

The decision on the projects within the HRVC jurisdiction along the Hudson River, was made after an initial required review, and permits the projects to proceed without further review or a public hearing.

The New York Telephone Company armored cable will be four feet below the natural river bottom. The sponsor has agreed to the commission's recommendation that construction be delayed until the latter part of May in order to avoid interruption of the migratory cycle of marine life in the river.

The Dutchess project is the Rivercrest East housing complex with a total of 96 apartments, off Route 9 in Poughkeepsie. The sponsor is Jacob Green.

Cement Company Meet

The Alpha Portland Cement Company held its annual meeting recently in Flemington, N.J., when a Board of Directors for the ensuing year was elected. William A. Every who had served the board of trustees during the formative years of the college, resigned that post last month due to ill health. He was appointed to the board in 1963 and his nine year term was due to expire June 30 of this year.

Juvenile Cited, Charged With Plaza Thefts

KINGSTON
A 14-year-old girl was turned over to officers of the Juvenile Aid Bureau of the police department for court action, after she was taken into custody by security officers at Britts store in the Kingston Shopping Plaza recently.

The officers were in the store when they spotted the girl with a blouse tucked under her coat. They investigated and reportedly found two blouses valued at $12 allegedly stolen from Sears store and two blouses valued at $22 which authorities said had been taken from Flah's store in the uptown shopping plaza.

A security officer said the juvenile was wearing a blouse she allegedly stole.

The investigation was continued by Sergeant Joseph Kivlan of the Juvenile Aid Bureau. The merchandise was recovered.

TODAY'S THOUGHT

By JIM GILPATRIC

One idea after another has been propounded by people in efforts to curb the display of, or, in other words, there is a thought that can be carried over every pulpit in America to encourage people to unite in a common prayer—initially uttered almost two hundred years ago—by George Washington.

"Almighty God, we make our earnest prayer that Thou wilt keep the United States in Thy holy protection; that Thou wilt incline the hearts of the citizens to cultivate a spirit of subordination and obedience to government and entertain a brotherly affection and love for one another and for their fellow citizens of the United States at large. And finally that Thou wilt most graciously be pleased to dispose all to do justice, to love mercy, and to demean ourselves with that charity, humility, and pacific temper of mind which were the characteristics of the divine author of our blessed religion, and without a humble imitation of whose examples in these things we can never hope to be a happy nation. Amen."

Secretaries Week Celebrated

Louis A. Salzmann, Acting Superintendent of the Kingston City Schools Consolidated, in a special bulletin to all the administrators of the Kingston School System brought to their attention that National Secretaries Week is being celebrated during the week of April 19-25. He also indicated that April 22 would be Secretaries Day.

This recognition bulletin was issued to especially honor the Educational Secretaries of the Kingston Area who are employed by the Kingston Schools Consolidated. In his bulletin, Salzmann said "I am sure you each appreciate the loyal support and inestimable value of your secretarial staff. I am also sure that a word from you during this week will be appreciated."

National Secretaries Week is sponsored by the National Secretaries Association, the world's leading secretarial association. This will be the 19th consecutive annual observance. The theme for this year is "Better Secretaries Mean Better Business."

Members of the Educational Secretaries of the Kingston Area consist of all secretarial and clerical employees of the Kingston City Schools Consolidated. Officers of the organization are: Mrs. Margaret McCordle, president; Miss Louise Prochaska, vice president; Mrs. Dolores McGowan, recording secretary; Mrs. Angela Doyle, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Rose Grant, treasurer; and Miss Elizabeth Dierks, historian.

CHICKEN CONSUMPTION UP: PRICES STEADY

Consumption of chicken in 1969 rose 2 pounds over 1968 and reached an average of 39 pounds per person. It is no wonder that six out of ten families eat chicken on the average of at least once a week, as a national poultry survey of households showed, says Louise K. Breitling, Extension Home Economist. Because chicken is less expensive than many meats, families tend to serve it often. Prices for broilers have shown the smallest increase of any meat cut in the past decade. In fact, prices gathered by the Bureau of Labor Statistics show that broilers have remained virtually unchanged in price in the 10 years since 1957-59.

AT THE MARKETS

MEATS — Supplies of pork, though increasing as usual at this time of year, are not expected to match those of a year ago. Prices will continue high. Beef prices are recently in the mid-west with gains also at the wholesale level. Marketings of beef will be slightly higher than a year ago but not enough to reduce prices. Supplies of veal are off sharply from last year. Lamb marketings will be moderate to liberal at times, but supplies will not increase sufficiently to bring about any sustained reduction in prices. The shopper must still rely on knowledge of cuts, costs, and specials to save on the meat bill.

Fruits and Vegetables — Shoppers should check prices of processed fruits and vegetables to determine if they are less expensive than fresh choices. Many processed items are in good to heavy supply and may offer more for the money than fresh fruits and vegetables. Among fresh produce, prices are lowest for asparagus, carrots, celery, lettuce, potatoes, sweet potatoes, apples, oranges, grapefruit, and Chilean honey dew and Spanish melons.

Honey — The 1969 production of honey was a record and, coupled with plentiful carryover stocks, has resulted in abundant supplies. Production of honey was a record and, coupled with plentiful carryover stocks, has resulted in abundant supplies. Production was up in all sections of the country, so the chances are good that shoppers can find their favorite type of honey at reasonable prices.

Citadel Cadet Larry F. Flowers Elected Member of Honor Committee

Citadel Cadet Larry Frederick Flowers, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Flowers Jr., 61½ Downs Street, Kingston, is a newly-elected member of the Citadel Honor Committee for the 1970-71 academic year at Charleston, S.C.

Twenty-one rising first classmen, one from each company and four battalion representatives, comprise this elite group whose duties include the constant orientation of all classes on the principles, purposes, and practices of the Honor System, and on current rules and regulations concerning the system.

One aspect of cadet life at The Citadel that is emphasized over all others is honor. The Guidon, the orientation manual issued to all incoming fourth classmen, defines honor as "the most cherished principle of the cadet's life."

Election to the Honor Committee has long been considered one of the highest tributes which can be paid a cadet by his fellow students.

Cadet Flowers holds the rank of staff sergeant within the South Carolina Corps of Cadets. He is enrolled in the Air Force ROTC Program and was named to the Committee of Staff Sergeants. Flowers is a member of The Citadel Gymnastic Club and is majoring in physical education.

The Savings Bank "save-when-you-spend" plan.

NEW YORK STATE SAVINGS BANK

CRUW POWER

It really works.

If you knew of a sure-fire way to save up to 20% on many of the things you buy, wouldn't you take advantage of it?

There is a way. We call it "save-when-you-spend." It's as simple as A-B.

A. You don't stop buying things but you save for them first, in a Savings Bank. Savings Banks pay you high interest-dividends, right from the start.

B. If you save up for something, then use some cash from your Savings Bank account instead of paying for all of it on time, you can save up to 20% a year by avoiding credit charges.

Why spend your money on credit charges when you can spend it on yourself? By using cash from your Savings Bank account to buy things with, you'll have more money to spend on you—and your family.

Helping people save when they spend is further proof that Savings Banks are banks where people come first.

No wonder people now have over 11½ million savings accounts in New York State Savings Banks.

Could you use $1,087 ?

... you can get it by saving just $20 a week at K.S.B. In one year with 5% interest-dividends compounded daily you will have a total of $1,087. Avoid high finance charges on your next purchase.

Based on latest interest-dividend rate declared on regular passbook savings. Other examples at 5% per annum compounded daily: $5 saved weekly for one year will grow to $271.75; $10 weekly for one year will grow to $543.50.

Pollution Suit Filed by Two Red Hook Residents

RED HOOK
A murmuring at last week's Town Board meeting here has changed into a full-fledged cry concerning alleged pollution of the Sawkill Stream, with two Red Hook residents filing suit against Orchard Hill Farms, Inc.

William J. Schloemer, 16 Cambridge Drive, asked village and town officials to his home Sunday afternoon to view the stream and take note of the offensive odor which he claims has plagued him and other area residents for 12 years.

"We have been fighting this for 12 years," he told The Freeman Monday, "but have received no satisfaction." Schloemer is joined by Gordon Voorhis, who operates a fruit farm and cold storage plant on Route 199, in seeking the injunction against further pollution of the stream. They have retained Nathaniel Rubin of Poughkeepsie as attorney. Schloemer said that while he had not contacted Orchard Hill himself over the years that the village officials and members of the Dutchess County Health Department had sought to stop the dumping of chemical effluent into the stream.

John F. Hoey, a Woodstock resident and executive vice-president of Orchard Hill, was unavailable for comment Monday evening, but had previously stressed to The Freeman in an interview in the autumn of 1969 that the effluent produced at the frozen food plant has "next to no odor, has the consistency of molasses, and cannot possibly travel through the ground."

This statement was made objected to the plant's disposal of the waste material by burying it on farm property last fall. Hoey said at that time that $400,000 had been invested in the treatment facilities for the effluent.

Schloemer noted Monday that he had reached the boiling point concerning the alleged odor, "It's enough to make you sick," he said, adding that since the advent of warm weather the odor had increased near the stream.

POWER BOAT GROUP INSTALLS — Kingston Power Boat Association launched the 1970 boating season at a buffet supper Saturday at the clubhouse with installation of officers and "change of watch" ceremony. Participating in the ceremony were (L-R) Jerry D'Annio, fleet captain; Walter Houle, treasurer; Jerome Mack, commodore; John Rapp, retiring commodore and Fred Spalt, vice commodore. Also in attendance were Walter Brucholtz, honorary commodore; Hurley Simpson, financial secretary; James Patrick, secretary; and David Aldrich, measurer. KPBA was founded in 1938. Its clubhouse and marina on Rondout Creek serves as anchorage and snug harbor for a fleet of more than 40 boats. (Freeman photo by Kruh).

Ellenville School Board Sets Date For Informational Budget Meeting

By SHANE CROSSBY
ELLENVILLE
Wednesday, April 29, has been set as the date for an informational meeting here to discuss the 1970-71 Ellenville Central School's budget, to be voted upon on May 6.

The school's board of education, while noting that no wage agreement has yet been reached with the district's teachers, said copies of the budget will be available to residents at the April 29 session, scheduled for 8 p.m. in the main auditorium.

In addition to an expected $3-million-plus school budget, voters of the district are being asked to fill three three-year positions on the board of education and a five-year position on the board of library trustees. So far, six persons have submitted their names for the three school board seats, being vacated by president James J. Murray, and members Richard McDole and Frederick R. Van Keuren. Of the three incumbents, only McDole has stated he is not planning to seek re-election.

Prospective candidates have until Wednesday to file petitions. Already filed, in addition to incumbents Murray and Van Keuren, are Louis Greenstein, Luis Aponite, Dr. James F. Cone Jr. and George Murrill. Murrill is the first black to seek public office in the village. He has been a resident of the area for the past 10 years and is employed by Channel Master Corp.

The contested seat on the library board is now held by Benjamin Terwilliger, who has announced he will not seek re-election. The annual meeting of the district is planned for the night before voting, May 5 at 7:30 p.m. in the same auditorium.

Although few details of the budget of $3,050,068—a record proposed budget have been made public, it is expected to be slightly above the 1969-70 measure for the district, with most of the added money going for higher costs of construction due to increases in the teaching staff and salary agreements.

The budget for the Ellenville Library and Museum is also to be voted upon, and the two combined budgets being acted upon as one. Last year, the voters approved a budget of $75,840 for the two functions.

The one change in voting in Ellenville this year will be to have contestants for board of education posts run in a "majority" system, with the three with the largest number of votes being elected, rather than requiring that each candidate seek a specific seat on the board. That change was voted in last year by an overwhelming majority.

Ellenville voters turned out in light numbers for the 1969 vote, passing the school's record budget by 458 to 402. The total vote, 887, was a drop of almost 40 per cent from the 1,480 who went to the school polls in 1968 before, rejecting that budget.

State Gives Stamp of Approval After Audit of County's Books

KINGSTON
A five-month audit of Ulster County's fiscal affairs was concluded recently by the State Department of Audit and Control with a resultant general stamp of approval.

Recommendations were made with regard to certain procedures in various departments and a critique was held to review them with some department heads.

Budget and tax procedures were reviewed and accounting and other records were examined to determine compliance with statutory requirements. The audit encompassed the years 1965 through 1968.

The balance sheets of the various county funds were examined with related statements of revenues, expenditures, reserves and fund balances, according to Edward W. Snyder, clerk of the County Legislature, who said that the auditors were pleased with the records of the county's financial status and that any suggestions were of a minor rather than a major nature.

The audit, approved by Aaron S. Sabowitz, principal examiner of municipal affairs, recommends that in the future the county mental health director be reimbursed for expenses in connection with commitment examinations rather than be paid a fee from the county.

The county was reminded that all purchases in excess of $1,000 and $2,500 be advertised for bid. The report states that four made by Data Processing Department and one by the Highway Department and another by Public Works Department were not. They were not. They were not.

One Petition Filled to Date For Rhinebeck School Post

RHINEBECK
With only one day remaining in which candidates for the Rhinebeck Board of Education can file a petition for the vacancy, only one such petition has been filed, according to

Mrs. Florence Ahearn, clerk of the board. She said today that she had received the necessary form, which was in order, from James Kelly, 3 Huntington Road, Rhinebeck.

Kelly was a board member for two years prior to his defeat last year when he sought to win his first full term. James Cecil outpolled him in that contest.

Kelly was active in formulating the narcotics guideline policy adopted by the Rhinebeck Board of Education this past winter, and continued in an advisory capacity even after he failed to win the election.

The vacancy will occur in the May 6 election as board President Robert W. Asher resigns after two complete five-year terms.

X-Movies Discussed

RHINEBECK
The Rev. Willis Jones, who has led a crusade for the diversification of fare at the Starr Theater in Rhinebeck, said Monday night that the Starr Institute Board of Trustees had agreed to a solution which seemed amenable to all.

The Rev. Jones, tired of seeing only x-rated pictures at the theater for the past few months, asked to speak to the controlling faction and give his case for interspersing more general film offerings among the restricted.

He told The Freeman Monday night after meeting with the Starr Institute board that he was not at liberty to reveal the conversations concerning his request, but that it was agreeable.

The Rev. Mr. Jones said that he had the backing of the Rhinebeck Clergymen's Association. He said that while he had not been to any x-rated shows at the Rhinebeck theater, he had viewed several at other places and found them to be lacking in entertainment value.

The Starr Institute Board of Trustees is expected to issue a statement concerning any change of policy, according to the Rev. Mr. Jones.

The Yankees scored five runs before a man was out in the first inning with Cater capping night as they pounded out 12 hits and routed the Washington Senators, 11-2. A replacement, Stan Bahnsen, was a big gun in the attack with two hits, including a three-run homer, and rookie catcher Munson broke out of his 0-for-24 slump with three hits and two runs batted in. Danny Cater, a newcomer to the team this year, also contributed heavily with three hits, three RBIs and four runs scored.

Stan Bahnsen struck out 10 in his seven-inning stint, even though he was touched for 10 off the 10th with a single, hits, for his first victory.

and held there as Billy Cowan was walked intentionally. Aurelio Rodriguez singled to load the bases and Repoz delivered his third straight single of the game to score Johnson. Paul Doyle was credited with the victory in relief while Lew Krausse took the loss. Danny Walton had a single, double and homer for the Brewers. Ed Kirkpatrick tripled and scored the go-ahead run for the Royals in the 11th on a throwing error by Oakland catcher Dave Duncan. Kirkpatrick tripled off Diego Segui with one out and Amos Otis walked. Otis then stole second and Duncan's throw went into center field, allowing Kirkpatrick to score.

Bob Oliver, who homered in the ninth with a man on to tie the score for Kansas City, added an insurance run in the 11th with another homer. Dick Green and Duncan homered for Oakland. Boog Powell drove in a pair of runs, including the sixth-inning tie-breaker with a homer, as the Orioles edged the Red Sox in the annual Patriots Day game at Boston. Powell, who had singled home a run in the fourth, drilled his homer off Ray Culp and sent the righthander down to his second loss in three decisions. Jim Palmer went the six innings to get credit for the victory.

Miller Barber Now Among Golf Elite

NEW ORLEANS, La. (AP) — Miller Barber doesn't find himself in the winner's circle often but he knows how to make his arrow-straight golf game pay off.

His playoff victory in the rich New Orleans Open Monday put him among the year's leading money winners.

The pudgy, balding, 39-year-old Shreveport, La., native knocked in a 12-foot birdie putt on the 560-yard second hole of his playoff with lefty Bob Charles of New Zealand and Californian Howie Johnson.

The $25,000 first-place check spiraled Barber's winnings to more than $69,000 for the year. He was ninth on the money list for 1970 before the New Orleans event.

Barber, Charles and Johnson were tied with 10-under par 278 at the end of the regular 72 holes Sunday.

They teed it up Monday morning under a burning sun at the 7,080-yard Lakewood Country Club course.

Johnson and Charles were both off the fairway on the first hole of the sudden death playoff but recovered to make par four. Barber knocked his drive down the middle, was on the green in two and just slipped past the hole on his try for a birdie.

Charles had to recover after slicing his tee shot badly while Barber and Johnson were on the 560-yard, par five second hole with their third and were going for birdies. Johnson missed his 18-foot birdie attempt by inches but Barber slapped his putt into the back of the cup and he was $25,000 richer.

The victory also qualified him for this week's Tournament of Champions where every player is assured of $2,500 for just showing up.

Though far from being a spectacular personality and rarely a tournament winner, Barber is a consistent money earner. He collected $105,000 in 1968 and brought home $90,000 last year. Barber won his first tour tournament in 1964 in the Cajun Classic at Lafayette. He now makes his home in Sherman, Tex.

Johnson and Charles divided second and third money with each pocketing a shade better than $11,000.

Rout Bucks 132-96 for Eastern Title

A Romp for the Knicks

NEW YORK (UPI)—When the odds are 5-1 in your favor, you're in pretty good shape. Just ask the New York Knicks. Stop Lew Alcindor and you stop the Milwaukee Bucks was the figuring before the start of the New York-Milwaukee playoffs for the National Basketball Association's Eastern Division title. But, the Knicks knew better. Don't stop Big Lew and you can still stop the Bucks.

New York proved its point conclusively Monday night by running Milwaukee off the court with a 132-96 triumph that eliminated the Bucks from the playoffs in five games and earned the Knicks the right to meet Los Angeles for the NBA championship beginning Friday night at New York.

"We knew Lew would score his points and get his rebounds," said Knick captain Willis Reed who, despite the statistics, was relatively successful in containing the NBA's Rookie of the Year. "We played a team style." Reed added, "and as a team, we knew we could outscore them. We got contributions from everybody, that's how we won the Eastern Division during the regular season."

Reed applied the finishing touches in the final game when his 32 points and 27 more by veteran Dick Barnett, including 16 in a torrid first quarter, made a farce of the contest. Alcindor, who had averaged 36 points through the first four games, tallied 27, but made only six of 17 field goal attempts in the first half when New York rolled to a commanding 69-45 lead and twice was benched by Bucks Coach Larry Costello.

Costello removed Alcindor with 1:30 left in the first half and his team-trailing, 62-39, in an attempt to shake up the frustrated Bucks and benched his star for good midway through the third quarter with the game obviously out of hand. Costello paid the Knicks the supreme compliment by saying, "No team ever played any better against us. Their shooting was fantastic, they got off to a great start and they kept pressuring us with their defense."

"We shouldn't even have been here," Alcindor said. "We're a young team, just our second year in the league. I believe I did my job. I'm not disappointed because the Knicks are a better team. We don't have anything to feel ashamed about. You can't be disappointed when a better team beats you."

New York, cheered on by a capacity crowd of 19,500 long suffering fans who haven't seen the Knicks in the NBA finals since the 1952-53 season, buried Milwaukee's Cinderella hopes with a finality. The Knicks and Lakers, who beat Atlanta in four straight in the West final playoff, open Friday in New York with the second game scheduled Monday night in Madison Square Garden. The third and fourth games will be played in Los Angeles, Wednesday, April 29 and Friday, May 1.

Friendly Forbes Stirs Stargell

(By The Associated Press)

There's no place like home to break out of a slump—and nowhere better than the friendly right field roof in Forbes Field. Friendly? Well, friendly for Willie Stargell, anyway.

Stargell, hung with a monstrous .037 batting average, launched a typical, out-of-sight homer over the faraway double-tiered roof and carried Pittsburgh to a 3-1 victory over Houston Monday night.

"It helps mentally to get a home run," said Stargell who had collected only a single in 27 at-bats prior to Monday night's game. "But I would have been happy to have it go just over the screen ... unless somebody is going to give me $1,000 every time I hit one over the roof."

Cincinnati slugged three home runs to dump the skidding Atlanta Braves 6-2 in the National League's only other game Monday.

Stargell, who also drove in the Pirates' other run with a sacrifice fly in the first inning, was brimming with confidence after busting his early-season willies. "It has to be uphill from here," said Walloping Willie, who boosted his batting average 32 points to .069. "I looked in the paper Sunday and I saw I had hit bottom."

The outer orbit in right field is fast becoming known as "Stargell's Stoop." It has only been reached 17 times in Forbes Field's 61-year history, and Stargell has made it six times. After Stargell got Pittsburgh an early 1-0 lead, the Astros tied the game in the sixth on Denis Menke's run-scoring single which hit Pirate pitcher Dock Ellis on the right hand. Ellis had to leave the game at the end of the inning.

Then Richie Hebner drew a walk from Jim Bouton in the sixth and Stargell hit one downtown.

Tony Perez slammed his seventh homer and Johnny Bench and rookie Hal McRae added round-trippers as the homer-happy Reds won their sixth game in seven. The loss was the fourth straight for Atlanta.

"I beat everybody in the league last year except these guys," said the Reds' winning pitcher, Jim Merritt. "This one is some kind of sweet victory." Manager Sparky Anderson of Cincinnati: "That's four solid games for Merritt. He really knows how to pitch. Every game's been just like that."

Merritt, who won his third game in four decisions, scattered six hits. His only trouble was in the ninth, when Rico Carty hit a two-run homer.

3 Hits for Ferraro

ROCHESTER

Mike Ferraro broke out of an "0 for 7" slump Monday night to contribute three singles, as the Rochester Red Wings trounced the Louisville Colonels, 8-3, in the International League.

It was the Red Wings' third win in four starts in the early season. Tom Shopay, a former New York Yankee player, supplied the power for Rochester with a triple and a double. Bob Grich matched Ferraro's three singles for the Wings.

Rick Delgado, who relieved starter John Montague in the fifth inning, allowed only three singles the rest of the way to pick up the win, while Dick Mills took the loss. Louisville threw five pitchers at the Red Wings, all to no avail as Rochester rapped 15 hits. It was the fourth straight defeat for the Colonels.

In the only other game, Toledo rallied for four runs in the eighth inning to overcome a 3-1 deficit and beat previously undefeated Tidewater, 5-3.

Ron Hill Crosses Finish Line

First Briton to Win It Marathon Is Easy for Hill

BOSTON (AP)—Nearly two centuries ago Paul Revere rode through the Massachusetts countryside sounding the alarm: "The British are coming." The same warning should have been given for the 74th Boston A.A. Marathon.

Ron Hill, a 31-year-old textile chemist from Cheshire, England, made Boston's Patriot's Day a personal celebration Monday as he romped to a record-smashing victory in becoming the first Briton ever to win the annual 26-mile, 385-yard classic run from Hopkinton.

Hill probably proved faster and more durable than Paul Revere's horse in 1775 as he charged through a driving rain whipped by a strong headwind and covered the course in 2 hours, 10 minutes, 30 seconds, making a shambles of the record of 2:13.49 set by Japan's Yoshiaki Unetani just one year ago.

Hill, the European champion given the honor of wearing No. 1 on his mesh jersey, was in command all the way as he opened a big lead on the field of 1,011 official starters. However, former Georgetown University track captain Eamon O'Reilly, running in only his third marathon, applied strong pressure in the final six miles.

O'Reilly, 25, now a graduate fellow in mathematics at Georgetown, surprised Hill and virtually every observer by closing to within 200 yards before the British distance ace managed to shake him off near the finish. O'Reilly finished in 2:11.12, the fastest marathon ever by an American.

Distaff Side

BOSTON (AP) — Female competition in BAA Marathon is no longer a laughing matter—at least for half of the male entrants in the 26-mile plus Hopkinton to Boston run.

Five women, three of them mothers, finished the race Monday—all within three hours and 35 minutes.

Leader among the distaffs, who are officially barred from the race and whose times are not recorded, was Mrs. Sara Bernan, 33, in 3:05. She was met at the finish line by her husband and 11-year-old daughter.

Mrs. Nina Kuscsik, 31, a mother of three from Huntington, N.Y., ran with her husband, Dick, but he couldn't keep the pace.

"It's the first time she's ever beat me," he explained. "She beat more than half the men in the race."

Mrs. Kuscsik was clocked at 3:12. "You know, it's really great to run," she said.

Duck Dance—A Natural

By United Press International
Duck Dance, a natural hunch betters on a rainy day at Aqueduct, led all the way to capture the 77th running of the $27,350 Toboggan Handicap Monday. It was the first major win of his career for Duck Dance, who covered the six furlongs over a sloppy track in 1:09 3-5 to take down the winner's share of $17,777. Duck Dance returned $3.40, and $2.80 and $2.20. Master Hand Special returned $10. and $8.80 and $8.80 and $8.80. Office Queen was $4.00 to win and $2.80 to place and show. At Garden State Park, 9-1 outsider Royal Signal and even-money favorite Office Queen won the split runnings of the Betsy Ross Handicap to high Stakes at Detroit and rewarded the stretch for her first stakes victory and paid $20.60, $9.60 and $7.80, while Goddess That Dollar paid $4.20 to show.

Paula Tentnowski Ties Mark With 661

WOODSTOCK
How about 661 for a career-high first six-hundred for a woman bowler? Pretty exciting stuff, even for a male.

That was Paula Tentnowski's reaction to her record shattering series which tied Mrs. Pat Van Gaasbeck of High Falls for seasonal scoring honors.

Mrs. Tentnowski, a 160 average bowler, slammed games of 254, 226 and 181 in the Woodstock Classic Invitational for her 661 which could be the all-time highest first time 600 for a woman in mid-Hudson valley bowling history.

"I was pretty excited and everybody was in a dither," said the West Hurley housewife. "After those first two big games, everybody keep reminding me that I needed only 120 for that first 600."

Mrs. Tentnowski, who has been bowling for nine years, went 61 pins over that quota, of course. She had three open frames—all misses—in the three game series—two in the finale when she was within range of a 700 slam. The 254-661 are, of course, new league records.

Mrs. Tentnowski is a member of bowling's exclusive class—a left hander, who uses a conventional grip, four-step delivery and throws a 14-pound ball. She holds a 158 average in the IBM Home Engineers and 160 in the Woodstock Invitational (prior to the big blast). She rolled her big series for The Little Shop team.

There is nothing fancy about Mrs. Tentnowski's style. She throws the ball pretty much down the middle with a slight break into the pocket area.

PAULA TENTNOWSKI

She launched her big series with a double, picked up two spares, then fired six strikes in a row before leaving nine pins for the 254.

Like most big series, this one came quite unexpectedly. "When the match started I was thinking only about winning three games for the team. But things started getting excited in a hurry."

Mrs. Tentnowski is the wife of Stanley Tentnowski, who also bowls. They reside in Maverick Park in the Town of Hurley, near the Woodstock town line.

Hank-Bud For Once See Alike

NEW YORK (AP) — Hank Stram and Bud Grant, on opposite sides of the field in the Super Bowl, lined up today as members in good standing of the Coaches Union—verbally declining to see any special significance in a Kansas City-Minnesota opening game.

The National Football League schedule-makers, however, took note of the intense interest in an instant replay of their Super Bowl clash when they booked the two teams to meet at Minnesota when the season opens the weekend of Sept. 18-21.

Stram, whose Chiefs upset Grant's Vikings 23-7 at New Orleans last Jan. 11, stood behind words as tricky as a play from his huge repertoire and took note of the schedule by saying:

"The 1970 season will be very challenging. The fact we are opening against the Minnesota Vikings further emphasizes the strong challenge that lies ahead."

Grant employed much the same technique, saying:

"What happened in New Orleans is history. The Kansas City game is just one of 14 we have to play. If you look at our schedule you will see pointing for one game would not be very wise."

While the coaches looked at it that way, General Manager Jim Finks of the Vikings had this appreciation of it:

"I'm sure most fans will look at it as a revenge game. But we will not make a vendetta out of it. We know one game won't make our season."

"But we welcome the opportunity to redeem our reputation. The opportunity for redemption will come on the third day of a four-day opening week's schedule—the first drawn under the new two-conference NFL set-up and with an eye toward the Monday night television testing ground."

The schedule begins Friday night, Sept. 18 with St. Louis at Los Angeles, then spotlights Chicago at the New York Giants Saturday and a 10-game Sunday program that offers the Kansas City at Minnesota rematch.

In other Sunday openers, Atlanta will be at New Orleans, Baltimore at San Diego, Dallas at Philadelphia, Denver at Buffalo, Detroit at Green Bay, Houston at Pittsburgh, Miami at Boston, Oakland at Cincinnati and Washington at San Francisco.

The opening schedule winds up Monday night with the New York Jets at Cleveland in the first game of a 13-game Monday night series being telecast by the American Broadcasting Co. With that series, pro football hopes to broaden its popularity base.

Besides the Super Bowl rematch between Kansas City and Minnesota, the new schedule offers the Baltimore Colts two opportunities for revenge for their Super Bowl loss to the New York Jets at the end of the 1968 season.

The Jets also will meet their cross-town rivals from the National Conference, the New York Giants, while the new conference alignment offers several other interesting battles between clubs who will be meeting in regular season play for the first time.

Included among those are match-ups between Los Angeles and San Diego, Cincinnati and Cleveland, Kansas City and St. Louis, San Francisco and Oakland and Dallas and Houston.

Under the new conference structure, the 16 holdover NFL teams and the 10 former AFL teams, now all linked in one league, begin competing this year in two equally-balanced conferences.

Cleveland, Baltimore and Pittsburgh have joined with the 10 AFL teams to form the American Conference while the 13 remaining NFL teams now comprise the National Conference. Each team will play 14 games on a schedule that stretches for 182 games before post-season action begins.

HTA Plans Repeat Of Harness Series

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Harness Track of America announced plans Monday to repeat next year the seven-city world harness racing driving championship series it instigated in 1970.

The final leg of the 1970 competition was staged Sunday at Montreal.

Officials didn't indicate which cities would be in the 1971 tournament.

The winner of the first world driving title was Herve Filion of Canada, who had a total of 47 points in the series which visited Louisville Downs in Kentucky, Saratoga Harness Racing in Saratoga Springs, N.Y., Hazel Park in Detroit, Liberty Bell in Philadelphia, Painesville Raceway in Cleveland, Mohawk Raceway in Campbellsville, Ont., and Blue Bonnets in Montreal. Drivers from Austria, Germany, Italy, New Zealand, Australia, Canada, and the United States competed.

Filion won the title in the last of the five scheduled races in the tournament at Blue Bonnets when he finished first with the trotter Darnley's Raider to edge George Sholly of the United States, who was second with 418 points. Stanley Dancer of the United States was third with 392 points.

Coleman Wins Over Onteora High, 2-1

BOICEVILLE — Junior right-hander Mike Droulette became the first pitcher of the season to go the distance for John A. Coleman High this season and win. Droulette scattered four hits and gave up one run on a fielding error as the visiting Statesmen defeated Onteora, 2-1, Saturday.

Jim Smith took the loss as he and Ed Mercer teamed up to fire a two-hitter at the winners, but fell victim to seven errors in the field. Coleman is now 2-2 on the season.

The winners scored first in the top of the initial stanza as Mike Eiga reached first on an error, stole second, went to third on miscue and scored when Onteora misplayed a grounder by Pat Harder.

Coleman added the margin of victory in the top of the fourth as Dan Mills went all the way to second on a two-base error by the Indians. John Guess then slammed a long single to center and Mills scampered home.

The Indians rallied in the bottom of the sixth as Bob Leyes led off with a triple and then scored on a fly ball by Steve Kimmel, dropped for Coleman's only error of the game by centerfielder Geuss.

Dear Abby

Dating OK; Kiss Is Out

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

(© 1970 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: Except for one thing, I have a perfect relationship with an older man in my neighborhood. He loves to go to nice dinner spots, good theater, etc., but he doesn't drive, so I do the driving. (I am a divorcee.)

He knows I am not interested in marriage, and he admits he is too old for me, but he keeps telling me what a charming "dating companion" I am, and how much he enjoys this arrangement. Well, I enjoy it, too, until he starts begging me for a "good night kiss." He knows how disgusting I find it, but he continues to beg me anyway.

I would hate to dump him, as I find this arrangement very convenient and even enjoyable, until we say good night. Abby, tell me, why would a grown man beg for a kiss from someone he knows hates it?

KISSLESS DIVORCEE: DEAR KISSLESS: Because he's still trying to build a little romance into the relationship. If he is all that disgusting to you, remind him that a kiss on the hand is more continental, and that if he attempts to go beyond the continental limits, he'll lose his chauffeur and charming dating companion.

DEAR ABBY: My problem is that I have a big mouth. It's not a big mouth, exactly, but a loud voice. It's not high and shrill, it's just loud in volume. I have been embarrassed many times while speaking in what I consider to be a normal tone, and someone will say, "Please, don't talk so loud!" Maybe you can give me a few pointers on how I can keep my voice toned down.

BIG MOUTH IN BOSTON

DEAR BIG MOUTH: First, have your hearing tested. Many people talk loud because their hearing is defective. If your hearing is all right, find a speech therapist who will teach you to control your voice. And may I say in this connection that the number of otherwise attractive, charming, and intelligent people who desperately need voice and speech lessons is amazing. This could be one of the best investments you'll ever make.

DEAR ABBY: My parents died when I was an infant. I know what cemetery they are buried in, but there are no markers or headstones on their graves. I went to the people in charge of the cemetery and told them that I wanted to buy a headstone or marker with my parents' names on it, and I was told it wasn't possible because my parents were buried in a pair of plots paid for by a church organization, and only a member of that organization could give permission to mark those graves.

I went to that church and spoke to the priest, and he said the organization had long been dissolved and none of the members were living, and he could not give me permission.

I have talked to many people and no one can tell me what to do. Can you?

MRS. B.: DEAR MRS. B.: Talk to a lawyer. If there is a legitimate reason why your parents' graves cannot be marked, someone should be able to tell you what it is. If there is no existing reason why you can't put up a headstone, then your lawyer will protect your right to do so.

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope. For Abby's new booklet, "What Teen-Agers Want to Know," send $1 to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069. (Hear Dear Abby Mon. thru Sat. at 8:10 a. m. WKNY-1490)

CARROLL RIGHTER'S HOROSCOPE

GENERAL TENDENCIES:

You have a good idea how to get that information you want so much. Don't waste time in going so. Let everyone know you are resourceful and are set in the plan that means so much to you. Make it a point to do nothing that will in any way intrude upon the principles of others.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Handling monetary and other such matters early this morning is wise, since other problems can tax your patience later in the day. Don't take your anger out on mate this evening. Be kind and understanding instead.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Come to a real understanding with a loved one but do so in a most cooperative way. Don't be so stubborn or you really lose out where it means the most. Be wise.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) It is better that you get your work completed instead of trying to pass it on to others because it is boring. Be more persistent, and although your Sign does not have this quality as one of its strong points, acquire it.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) You can enjoy some entertainment now but it is important you do not force others to go along with your ideas just because you want companionship. Be congenial with everyone and you get excellent results.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) You will never be able to get rid of that opposition at home if you don't stop being so stubborn and demanding. Discuss matters in a cooperative fashion. Don't make a mountain out of a molehill.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) If you listen to what friends have to say instead of finding fault, you find you get along much better. Be careful while driving. Be wise.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) You have some monetary problem that can be handled very well now, so use your good common sense. Study reports that show you how to handle practical affairs. Be intelligent.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) If your work is efficient you gain the favor of higher-ups. This can start you on the road to true success. Stop bragging. Do whatever is important of a civic nature.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Out to new places and new adventures that are fascinating. A new friend can give you the answers you need. Don't hesitate about asking for them. Be precise.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be one of those fascinating young people who is very magnetic and will use this magnetism to gain his own way. Teach your child to use this asset more intelligently so that he does not make enemies instead of good friends. Ideal chart for investigative work, laboratory research, or any profession where much perseverance is required. Give the finest education you can afford. Be sure that religion is not ignored. Much travel here, too.

We used to know a character whose nickname was "Generous George." George specialized in refusing to win tricks or even going out of his way to lose them provided, of course, that he would get two or three tricks back as a reward for his generosity. It was George's custom to accompany his gift with a nice speech but somehow or other his opponents never seemed properly appreciative.

You don't have to be as good a player as George to know when to give away some tricks. All you have to be is a player who can count to whatever number of tricks you need to set the declarer if you are defending.

South's opening no-trump is classic as is North's raise to game. So is West's opening lead of the four of spades. Fourth best of your longest suit is a lead handed down from our whist playing grandfathers.

East rises with the ace. Just as automatic a play as there is and makes his proper return of the seven spot. South goes up with the queen. He hopes that this mild false card will get West to take the trick but if West is any sort of bridge player he simply gives the trick to South. The only two spades he can't account for at this time are the jack and three. If East held both he would not have led the seven. If East held just the jack he would have led it. So declarer gets this trick but he can't make his contract without the clubs. He takes the club finesse. East wins and leads his last spade to give West three tricks for the one he let go earlier. (Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

WHY WE SAY ACCUMULATE

A PILE: It might be said that if you accumulate money or anything else that you make a pile. The word is derived from the Latin "cumulare" for heap or pile. When you add the prefix "ad" to it accumulate means to pile up.

Jean Adams' TEEN FORUM

MILITANTS: (Q.) My best friend goes out with a boy who belongs to a new organization. He goes by the name of Camper Jim. She wants me to go with another follower. He is called Ron. I don't know his real name, because of the security rules in the organization.

My mother won't let me see Ron. She is firmly against militant groups. Who is right—my mother or me?—A friend of Ron in New Jersey.

(A.) Unless you believe strongly in the purposes and the methods of a militant group, and are willing to face the possible consequences of being connected with one, you would be foolish to get mixed up with one just to have a boy friend.

Find yourself a boy friend with a full name and a home address and parents or guardians you can meet in person.

SITTER: (Q.) I always go to our school dances, hoping some boy will ask me to dance with him. No one ever asks me. I just sit there, while all my girl friends dance.

When I go home my parents always ask me how the dance was and I always tell them: "It was lousy." Then I go in my room and cry my head off. What else can I do?—Unchained in Alabama.

(A.) You need to be seen dancing with someone, looking like you are having a great time. This helps make other boys notice you.

Ask one of your girl friends to get some boy she dances with to dance with you a time or two. That may be the ice-breaker. Some boy at the dance may see you having "a ball" and decide to have one with you.

The boy who is asked to dance with you may even start paying attention to you.

Good luck.

'Sesame'—Raves, Criticism

NEW YORK (AP) — "Sesame Street" is the most widely acclaimed television show in years and is virtually certain to win a Peabody Award today.

Nevertheless, this public television program for preschool children has its critics.

The most serious criticism to date comes from Dr. Frank Garfunkel, a Boston University professor and director of the Headstart Evaluation and Research Center, who calls it "an educational mirage."

Garfunkel charges in the current issue of the university alumni magazine, Bostonia, that the claim that "Sesame Street" is a major educational or media innovation is preposterous.

"Memorization of numbers and letters—which 'Sesame Street' does best—is an absurd enterprise for an $8 million project," he says. A major objection is his contention that memorizing of material is stressed while understanding is ignored.

He says the number and letter sequences often are presented "in the short, trigger-happy bursts of TV commercials."

Garfunkel calls for a personalized form of instruction with an interpersonal relationship between the teacher and pupil. He suggests "Sesame Street" should televise spontaneous class situations with real children exploring their environment, interacting and dealing with problems.

There have been other criticisms of the show, but Garfunkel's is the most serious charge by an eminent educator.

Gerald Lesser, Bigelow professor at the Harvard Graduate School of Education and chairman of the board of advisers and consultants for "Sesame Street," when asked for comment, said, "The emphasis on cognitive skills is very heavy, and the reason is that 'Sesame Street' is largely directed toward inner city kids. The things they need to learn are the fundamentals."

"It is very obvious to us the important consequences of acquiring rudimentary cognitive skills among these children. The pupil feels he knows something worth knowing and this is important for his own feelings about himself."

Lesser said the method adopted for the show was a viable alternative to a personalized relationship, which he said would be impossible to convey on television.

He said the criticism was "a tiresome assertion" by someone "who feels he knows the one best way to teach kids."

A preliminary survey taken in the Bedford-Stuyvesant section of Brooklyn showed a "significant increase in language and reasoning skills" among those watching it, Lesser said.

The effect on my 4-year-old daughter of watching "Sesame Street" has been remarkable. Her knowledge of the alphabet and numbers now extends to word recognition and elementary writing skills.

"Sesame Street" has had a major impact on commercial television. It has forced the networks into new thinking about children's programs and the results will be seen in seasons to come. "Sesame Street" well deserves a Peabody Award.

WORLD ALMANAC FACTS

During the Russo-Japanese War the Russian Baltic fleet sailed almost 18,000 miles to Japan, where it was disastrously defeated. The Russian fleet was intercepted in the Tsushima Strait by Japanese Admiral Togo's fleet on May 27, 1905, and was virtually annihilated. The World Almanac notes. This almost-forgotten encounter was one of history's most decisive naval surface engagements.

Speak to Michael School Parents

Ex-Drug Addicts Tell How It Began

By NANCY SULLIVAN

KINGSTON

"People use drugs as an escape in itself," commented Charles Richburg, a 19-year-old ex-drug addict.

Four young people who have been there and know "where it's at" spoke of their lives and their experiences with drugs to approximately 75 parents at the Myron J. Michael Junior High School, Monday night. The program was presented at the request of the Steering Committee of the Parents' Club. All four former drug users are involved in the Renaissance Project, a non-profit organization in Ellenville for the rehabilitation of drug addicts.

Virginia Montague, 22 years old from Westchester County, took drugs for eight years before coming to the Renaissance Project. She began by smoking pot and continued by popping pills, dropping LSD and shooting heroin. While using heroin she was put in jail three times and the third time she realized that she "wanted to do something to change." She has been with the Renaissance Project for six months and has "changed a lot since then." Virginia has learned how to live all over again—along with gaining self-confidence and shouldering responsibilities.

Life at the Project begins with going to one of four community education centers for about two weeks to prove one's sincerity in wanting to "kick the habit." The facility in Ellenville provides for a 24-hour live-in environment, she explained, in which you begin with a small job at the house and work your way up.

Charlie Klein, also from Westchester County, is 17 years old and used drugs for about three and one-half years. He began by smoking pot for about a year and later turned to acid and heroin, "which usually happens," he said. Charlie said he was lucky because he never got arrested and he made the choice of coming to Ellenville and participating in the Renaissance Project, where he has been for three and one-half months. "I've become more sensitive to other people and to myself," and Charlie "likes the Project." "It's like a brother and sister thing," he explained and everyone is very close.

Pat Robinson is 16 years old and used drugs for three years before coming to Ellenville. She began by sniffing glue and eventually turned to smoking pot and shooting heroin for kicks. "I didn't think I needed it," Pat said, referring to the Project but something changed her mind, and she too is on the road to recovery.

Richburg, a 19-year-old from New Rochelle was a drug user for four years. While taking drugs he was "doing a lot of things I never thought could happen" like "sticking guns in drugs" because of what he has learned. Charlie said the "hip thing to do" was to hang around street corners and smoke pot, which he did for three or four months before turning to heroin. "I lost the respect of all the people I once loved" and "drugs came before anything." He was in and out of jail and when faced with a six year sentence in jail, he figured it would be better to be involved in the Renaissance Project and he has presently been in Ellenville for three and one-half months. He said he has "no need to go back to been smoking pot for six months. At the time, he thought his parents hated him and wanted to get rid of him, but he now feels that what they did for him was done out of love.

When asked how drugs can be controlled, Virginia explained that it is very difficult because the younger addicts get it from friends, who in turn get it from another friend, and it's too difficult to get at the real source. Klein said that the way to control the problem is to "cut off the bottom people," the users.

When asked how they felt about people saying that smoking pot is no more dangerous than taking a drink, Virginia said that you can't smoke a reefer without getting high, but you can have one drink without getting high. Richburg said "pot is illegal" and that seems to sum up the difference. When asked if marijuana should be legalized, Pat said no. Although not everyone who starts on pot returns to hard drugs she did and feels that most people do.

There are currently 73 ex-drug addicts at the Ellenville facility — 12 women and 61 men. There are no drugs on the property and no one is allowed to leave until they have proved themselves responsible. The former drug users learn how to deal with problems and coming with the "people on the street." They are all trying to do the same thing — kick the habit. Before this can be done, all four agreed that the addict has to want to help himself and has to be honest. After three months they are allowed to write to their parents and after five months, to call them on the telephone. Eventually the parents can visit their children at Ellenville and the final step is being able to visit home. The four agreed that the drug problem is definitely getting worse and Pat said that the age of drug users is lower and the kids are "starting to go straight to the heart of drugs" — LSD and heroin. She feels that the best approach to combat the problem is through education. Virginia offered some advice to parents. She explained that in the mind of a 13 or 14 year-old, problems seen out of proportion. Parents should never turn to their children and say "I'm too busy" when their child comes to them for advice.
